Unemployment High, Construction Down

Economic News Still Bad

The recession is worse than indicated by even one of the bleakest government measurements, according to a Federal Reserve study.

And even Democratic staff members on the Senate Budget Committee agreed there is little Congress can do to prevent high unemployment through 1976.

There also was further evidence there has been no upturn in the depressed construction industry.

But the stock market showed continued strength. Prices Monday on the New York Stock Exchange, as measured by the Dow Jones industrial index, soared 14.08 to 753.13.

The Dow closed at the highest level for the year, exceeding the prior high of 749.77 Feb. 21.

The Commerce Department said construction spending dropped 2.7 per cent in January to the annual rate of $128.1 billion, the lowest since November, 1972, when it was $128 billion. Building volume was 15.5 per cent below a year ago when inflation is discounted.

Residential housing and public construction both declined a sharp 4.6 per cent.

A study of 12 sectors of the economy by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston shows the economy slumped in January at almost twice the rate indicated by the Commerce Department's composite of nine leading economic indicators.

The index is considered a better measurement than the Commerce Department's composite because it allows for inflation and Commerce does not.

The Fed's study showed an economic slide of 3 per cent from January to February and 21.7 per cent since July, 1973, when the index hit its peak of 120.4. In January it was 94.3.

"It shows we are in the for the worst recession since we started calculating the index" 22 years ago, the bank said.

The automobile industry finished its rebate promotion period last week on the upswing, selling an estimated 200,000 cars in the Feb. 21-28 period —the best day-to-day average since the 1975 models were introduced in early October.

The four automakers, however, said production for February was off 34 per cent from last year —the lowest February production since 1961.

The staff of the Senate Budget Committee released an alternative to President Ford's budget saying it would speed economic recovery but would reduce average 1975 unemployment from Ford's projection of 8.1 per cent to 8 per cent.

The staff projected average 1976 unemployment at 7.5, only slightly better than Ford's projection of 7.9 per cent. In normal times, unemployment averages about 4.5 per cent.

They said while their budget wouldn't produce many more jobs than Ford's until after 1978, the Ford budget would not allow economic recovery without more inflation.

The Senate program calls for tax cuts of $30 billion, nearly double the $16 billion tax cut the House voted last week, and would make an 8.7 per cent Social Security benefit increase retroactive to Jan. 1. Ford wants to limit the benefit increase to 5 per cent.

On Feb. 3, Ford proposed spending a record $349.4 billion. The alternative Senate budget is only $5.6 billion larger —$355 billion.

The committee said unemployment would average 8 per cent in 1975 and 7.5 per cent in 1976 under its plan — compared to 8.1 per cent and 7.9 percent predicted by the administration.

The nation wouldn't return to a "normal" unemployment rate, about 4.5 per cent, until nearly 1980, the committee said.

Ford's advisers have predicted 5.5 per cent joblessness at the turn of the century.

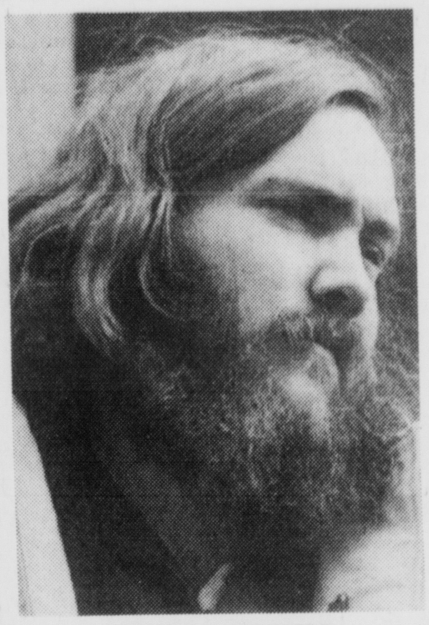

Chatham Draft Dodger Agrees to Amnesty

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A convicted draft dodger who fled to Canada to avoid jail has decided to participate in the soon to end presidential clemency program rather than go on as "a stranger in a strange land."

Steven W. Trimm, an antiwar activist of the 1960s whose trial became of focal point of the Vietnam controversy, returned from Canada after lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union arraigned for him to take part in the program, which ends this month. Until last year, it was believed Trimm had committed suicide.

Wearing shoulder-length hair and a full beard, Trimm Monday stood before U.S. District Court Judge John T. Foley—the man who sentenced him in 1968—and said softly "They were very troubled times. It was hard to know what was rational."

Trimm, who fled to Hamilton, Ont., when his conviction was upheld, said after his appearance that he decided to return to the United States because "I was't making it. I wasn't strong enough."

STEVEN TRIMM (UPI)

He said that people he met in Canada were friendly but "I was a stranger in a strange land ... I felt alone in many ways."

In 1968, when he was 18, the native of nearby Chatham refused military induction on the grounds of personal belief. He was indicted a short time later.

Foley, after recalling the 1968 trial and the demonstrations that went with it, told Trimm, "I won't be giving any awards ... there are many people who were sentenced and did not run away."

Foley ordered Trimm, 24, to serve the original four-year sentence. However, Trimm was immediately furloughed, the first step under the clemency program.

The judge said he believed Trimm, who defended himself during the trial, was sincere but that he imposed the sentence because "there were many people who's sons went to Vietnam and they were on my mind."

Trimm went to Canada in October, 1969, shortly after the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Manhattan upheld his conviction. It was believed then that he had taken his own life when some of his clothing was discovered on a beach in Rhode Island.

However, in January, 1974, Trimm disclosed that he was alive and living in Canada.

The soft-spoken youth said he felt "there are many things wrong with the clemency program ... but this is it, take it or leave it." It was announced last week that the program would end this month, with no extensions granted.

Trimm was represented at the hearing by attorney Melvin L. Wolf, legal director of the ACLU, and ACLU lawyer Edwin Oppenheimer, both of New York City.

Wolf said he was "pleased by what happened. Philisophically, it wasn't what we would have liked, but realistically it was what we wanted."

Assistant U.S. Attorney James Cullen and the ACLU attorneys had reached an agreement that allowed Trimm to participate in the presidential plan almost immediately.

Fish Meets With Kissinger

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (L), discusses the situation in Southeast Asia with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at a recent "House working breakfast." The 25th District Republican is opposed to President Ford's proposal for additional military support for South Vietnam and Cambodia. Kissinger met with House members to brief them on the Administration's position.

Carey Deficiency Budget Trimmed

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey's first deficiency budget has been cut sharply by the legislative leadership— including the trimming of $25.5 million in cash and elimination of $73 million for the South Mall office project.

The cuts, released jointly Monday by the Senate and Assembly fiscal committees, reflect agreement among the Democratic and Republican leaders of the two houses. There is virtually no doubt that the recommendation will be approved by the legislature later this month.

In previous years, even when the same party controlled both houses, separate committee reports were released and a compromise reached later. This year, the recommendation was issued jointly by Republican Sen. John J. Marchi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Democratic Assemblyman Burton G. Hecht, head of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

Carey had requested the additional money back in January to see the state through the rest of the fiscal year, which ends March 31. The deficiency budget fills the gap between the money approved a year ago for the 1974-75 fiscal year and expenses incurred.

The report was released jointly by Republican Sen. John J. Marchi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Democratic Assemblyman Burton G. Hecht, chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The Mental Hygiene Department received the largest cut of any state agency, with the panels cutting more than $21.5 million from its deficiency budget, trimming its appropriation to $8.2 million.

The governor's request for a cash appropriation of $65.9 million was reduced to $40.4 million. Although Carey had said $88 million in "first instance" appropriations was needed to complete construction work on the massive South Mall office project next to the state Capitol, the committees sharply cut the figure to $15 million.

In "first instance" funding, the state recovers the money through the sale of bonds.

The cuts were considerably more severe than the ones imposed last year on then-Gov. Malcolm Wilson.

At that time, Wilson requested a deficiency budget totaling $26.6 million and the legislature reduced his proposal to $24.1 million. In the last year Nelson A. Rockefeller was governor, he requested $211 million in deficiency funds. That figure was approved without reduction.

A spokesman for Carey said the governor's office would not offer a response to the cuts, saying "it's their prerogative."

The $73 million cut in the request for the South Mall was justified on the basis that the $15 million in added money would be adequate to allow construction schedules to be met.

Shelter Manager Is Fired, SPCA Employes Mull Action

By WADE BURKHART

KINGSTON

The employes of the Ulster County SPCA animal shelter on Brabrant Road are undecided as to what action they will take, following the firing of the shelter's manager for the past two years, Alan Kane, by the SPCA's board of directors Monday night.

Shelter worker Lance Hudson said the shelter staff was "taking care of the animals" today, and that they would "hopefully" make a decision on what action to take later in the day.

The workers — there were seven of them, now one less with the firing of Kane — struck and picketed the shelter last Thursday, but went back to work Friday when the board of directors scheduled Monday night's emergency meeting.

In a statement released following the meeting, by Board President Mary Russell, it was said that Kane refused to furnish a job description for his post to Vice President James Hadley, who is also head of the personnel committee.

The statement also said Kane's "initiation" of Thursday's job action and his threat of further job actions were "grossly premature and ill-advised," and said his "insubordinate behavior has endangered the Shelter and its hapless inhabitants."

The Monday night meeting was closed to the public. Kane said he was called before the board to answer "personal charges" made by Hadley, and that he considered his firing the result of a "kangaroo court."

He said a shelter worker, whom he did not name, was notified of his firing even before he was fired.

The key demand by the workers at the shelter is the resignation of Hadley and SPCA Treasurer Frank McNelis, who has changed the pay check procedure to the employes' discontent.

Pay is an issue, although Kane said it was not a key one. Kane, as manager was paid $3 per hour, and the rest of the shelter workers are paid $2.50 an hour; they say it has been a long time between raises.

Kane said Hadley had promised raises for the staff, which the statement from the board denies. The workers have also proposed a moratorium on any raises to use the money for other shelter needs, and the board statement said Kane "exceeded his authority" in proposing that.

Hadley, apparently at the eye of the present SPCA storm, was out of town today, and could not be reached for comment.

The board statement said the support for Hadley and McNelis by the board was "unqualified." This was denied by Dorothy Wilson, the board's corresponding secretary. "It certainly was not," she said emphatically.

She and past presidents Marie Post, who is Kane's mother in-law, and Dorothy Carlson have threatened resignation if employe demands were not met. Mrs. Wilson said provision for taking care of the animals had been made if the employes walk out, and that questions and arrangements of surrender of animals could still be made by telephone from noon to 4 p.m.

Catskill Branch Line:

Rail Preservation Funds May Keep Service Along Railroad

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

There is still a glimmer of hope for the preservation of the Catskill Mountain Branch line, even though it was omitted from the preliminary system plan released last week by the United States Railway Association.

Although there is still a "slight possibility" that the USRA may reconsider its decision concerning the Catskill Mountain Branch, it is more likely that the New York State Department of Transportation—using funds from the $250 million Rail Preservation Bond Act approved by the voters last year—will step in to help save the line.

At present, the Catskill Mountain Transportation Corp., which has expressed an interest in pruchasing the 83-mile branch line, is working with the DOT on a plan to preserve service along the railroad.

"The state has told us to come up with a plan to continue operation of the line," said corporation president Harris A. Gordon, "when we're finished, we'll go over it together and see what can be done."

State assistance, however, is not guaranteed. More than 700 miles of branch line track in New York was excluded from the USRA's preliminary system plan. Most of those lines will probably be seeking financial help from the state too, and the $250 million will only go so far.

According to Gordon, the Catskill Mountain Transportation Corp. estimates that it will cost at least $400,000 to rehabilitate the branch line. Two years ago, Penn Central estimated that it would cost $1.3 million. On Thursday, assistant DOT Commissioner Martin Zell told the Freeman that acquisition and rehabilitation of the line could cost "several million dollars, and that estimate may be low."

Despite such staggering figures, Zell noted that the line could be preserved at considerably less expense.

If the Catskill Mountain Branch, Zell, explained, is not included in the USRA's final system plan—which will be submitted to Congress in late July —the line may be eligible for a year subsidy which would maintain present service and facilities.

The subsidy—with 70 per cent provided by the federal governnment and 30 per cent from the state's rail bond funds —would cover only the annual operating deficit of the line, and would not provide for any track rehabilitation or additional equipment.

But, said Zell, "If we can keep the line in operation and perhaps push it into the black, it may be acceptable to Conrail at some later date. The idea is to keep the trains running as long as possible and hope that the line's profitability increases in the meantime."

Before any subsidy can be approved, however, the state and federal governments are going to have to reach agreement on just how much the line is losing each year. According to the federal formula, the line has an annual deficit of $694,000; the state's own formula puts that deficit at just $126,000 a year.

The Catskill Mountain Transportation Corp., however, doesn't believe that the annual deficit need run that high. The corporation is confient that, with the cooperation of shippers along the line, the Catskill Mountain Branch can turn a profit.

Gordon would like the state to buy the line, rehabilitate the track and lease it to the corporation, which would then be responsible for yearly profits and/or losses. The initial infusion of state funds would be necessary because it isn't likely that the corporation—through the sale of stock—could generate enough capital to restore the tracks and purchase modern equipment.

Zell, however, didn't appear optimistic that the state would agree to such a proposal. "We have to spread the money we have as far as we can," he commented, "we have to look at the priorities. The abandonment of one line may have a far greater impact on the economy of an area than would the abandonment of another line. These are considerations that we'll have to take into account before we commit the money, and they will affect not only the Catskill Mountain Branch but every other branch line in the state that is threatened."

While last week's news may have been disheartening for supporters o the Catskill Mountian Branch, those concerned with the fate of the Wallkill Valley line (which runs form Kingston to Orange County) had reason to celebrate. Not only was the line not abandoned, as had been feared by many, but it was upgraded from branch line to major freight line for the Northeast corridor. By rerouting freight along the Wallkill Valley line, other major lines in the region will be able to concentrate on providing faster and more frequent passenger service.

Podell Is Cleared as "Matchmaker'

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Secretary of State Mario M. Cuomo has cleared a Common Cause lobbyist of any wrongdoing in enlisting the lobbying help of two teen-aged girls and for acting as matchmaker for a staffer of former Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea.

However, Cuomo said Monday the lobbyist, Albert Podell, had been "intemperate" and that such action should be disapproved.

Duryea, a Montauk Republican, had accused Podell of acting as a "procurer" by having the two unidentified teen-agers lobby for a bill before the state legislature that would not require parental permission for doctors to sell contraceptive pills to minors.

In addition, Duryea implied that Podell was using corrupt means to influence Duryea by introducing an unidentified woman friend to a staffer of Duryea.

Both actions came to light on Feb. 11 when Podell, addressing a public meeting in Colonie, boasted that he had "an incredibly good pipeline in the Speaker's office."

There was an outcry both from legislators and Common Cause itself because of the statement. Podell was officially censured by the Assembly and was immediately fired by the non-profit, self-styled "citizens' lobby."

Cuomo's preliminary report, released simultaneously in New York and Albany, stated that "I can find no violation of the Penal Law."

On the matter of the two 15year-olds, Cuomo wrote: "There was a clear attempt to influence members in the use of the two young female witnesses, but ... there is no basis for concluding that they exercised anything other than their right of free speech in making their case to the legislators ...."

And on the matchmaking, Cuomo said: "There was ... not so much as a seduction of the staffer as there was an abandonment of Mr. Podell" by Common Cause, which fired the lobbyist on the face of the allegations.

MIT Student Designs a Nuclear Bomb

BOSTON (UPI) — Could a terrorist group using only technical knowledge available to the general public design and build an atomic bomb?

To find out, the Public Broadcasting Service asked a graduate student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to try to design a nuclear bomb in five weeks, using only information anyone in the public can get.

According to a nuclear weapons expert, the student drew up plans for a bomb that, if built, actually could work.

The student met the deadline —and asked to remain anonymous so real terrorists would not kidnap him and make him build a bomb for them.

"The Plutonium Connection," an episode of the PBS science series "Nova," describes the danger of atomic weapons falling into the hands of terrorists in a television program scheduled for broadcast Sunday, March 9, at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

The student's completed design was shown to Swedish defense department weapons expert Jan Prawitz. Prawitz said there was a "fair chance it would go off." He said it might have the power of 100 tons of TNT.

According to Dr. Theodore Taylor, whose warnings of nuclear danger prompted the program, the student's bomb would be big enough to kill 50,000-100,000 persons in a crowded urban area.

The student who designed the bomb —portrayed by an actor in the program —said it was "challenging mainly because of the time element involved."

He told UPI in a telephone interview that all the information needed was readily available in any good library, and most calculations involved in the design were nothing more than high school algebra.

Once a design has been completed, a terrorist group would need to get fissionable material, the PBS program says. Film clips of terrorist actions show such groups are fanatical and care little for their own lives and less for the lives of bystanders.

The program suggests security around plutonium probably would not stop a large, dedicated group from stealing enough to make a bomb. It takes only 1.5 ounces of plutonium to make a bomb with the wallop of 1,000 tons of TNT.

Officials interviewed by PBS say plutonium security is intended to delay, rather than prevent, outright theft. State and local police agencies have said it could take 40 minutes for them to respond with reinforcements.

Best Day-to-Day Average for Car Sales

DETROIT (UPI) — In their rush to beat the the cash rebate deadline, buyers helped push auto sales in the final days of February to the highest level of the 1975 model year.

Industry analysts said sales reports expected from General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors today and from Ford Wednesday would show sales of nearly 200,000 cars in the Feb. 21-28 period —the best day-today average since the '75s were introduced in early October.

While sales were moving steadily upward in February because of the rebates, the need to trim huge inventories of unsold cars led to the lowest production in 14 years, the four automakers reported Monday. But the sales upswing from the rebate programs means higher output for the industry in the next three months.

The rebate promotion ended Friday, and dealers contacted by UPI said it was too early to tell what kind of sales dropoff there will be in early March. They said sales were slow Saturday and Monday.

One New Jersey Ford dealer said he sold two cars last Saturday, compared with 20 on Saturdays since the rebate price war began in January. A Detroit Chevrolet dealer said only one small car had been sold by late Monday.

The first effects of the ending of rebates will not be known until automakers issue their early March sales report March 13.

GM, Ford, Chrysler and AMC said they turned out 371,058 cars in February —off 34 per cent from the energy crisis period last year and the lowest February production since 1961.

Analysts estimated curtailed February production schedules and the sales pickup helped trim more than 100,000 cars from the 1.7 million-car inventory of early January.

The industry statistical service, Ward's Automotive Reports, predicts March production at about 472,000 cars, 27 per cent above February but still the lowest since 1961. Spring output, when the automakers build up inventories to carry them through the summer, could hit 575,000 cars in April and 587,000 in May —higher than during the early months of 1975 but still the lowest in 14 years.

Georgia Law Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Supreme Court ruling Monday struck down a ban against printing or broadcasting a rape victim's name, but press coverage of criminal trials and juvenile proceedings can still be limited by state laws and judges.

The decision ruled unconstitutional a Georgia law which made it a misdemeanor to use the rape victim's name in news stories even when it was available in the public record at the courthouse.

In rejecting attempts by the father of a rape victim to use the state law as grounds to sue an Atlanta television station, Justice Byron R. White said, "Even the prevailing law of invasion of privacy generally recognizes that the interests in privacy fade when the information involved already appears on the public record."

But White specifically declined to go beyond the instant case, making it clear in a footnote that "we mean to imply nothing about any constitutional questions which might arise from a state policy not allowing access by the public and press to various kinds of official records, such as records of juvenile proceedings."

The court left for another day any indication of what it thinks about the growing conflict between the media and trial judges over what can be broadcast or printed during a trial.

"Gag orders" have been issued by trial judges with increasing frequency to prevent news coverage of various legal proceedings. Sometimes, as in many of the Watergate cases, grand jury indictments are sealed.

Juvenile proceedings are kept secret on grounds the defendant will have a better chance for reform without the glare of publicity.

BUICK GARAGE WOULD BE DEMOLISHED (FREEMAN PHOTO)

Legislature Will Purchase Buick Garage for $235 Thousand

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Ulster County Legislature will move next week to purchase the Buick Garage property adjacent to the County Office Building in Uptown Kingston for $235,000 which is $40,000 less than the site was offered for several years ago.

It appears that there is sufficient support among the 33 members of the county board to pass the necessary legislation to make the purchase, according to Buildings Superintendent Kenneth J. Whispell. The board met in executive session Monday night to consider the proposal which has been recommended by the County Building Committee.

Federal revenue sharing funds would be used to purchase the property. Its acquisition will provide an additional and much needed 80 well designed parking spaces as well as a sound brick building on Pearl Street with about 3,000 square feet of space to be utilized by the County Probation Department.

Plans call for the demolition of the Buick Garage by a private firm with the County Highway Department removing the debris.

The proposal "protects the county's existing investment in the County Office Building, " according to Robert H. Kuhlmann, (R-Dist. 7), chairman of the Building Committee.

"The County Office Building would now cost $3 million to reproduce," he explained, pointing out that "the building is a fire hazard because of badly overcrowded conditions within the building and the double and triple parking at the rear."

Kuhlmann reports that with more than 60,000 feet of floor area, the building should have at least 270 parking spaces, yet there are only 67 spaces on the site and in the Main Street parking lot across the street.

The Building Committee also felt that it is a good time to move to purchase in view of the fact that Buick Garage property owner Conrad Gross planned to place the property on the active real estate market for sale as a commercial site.

"To allow by default a commercial development which might bring more traffic to the area and intensify the existing on-street parking problem, could seriously aggravate the existing parking problem and further depreciate the usefulness of the County Office Building," Kuhlmann said.

It was pointed out that the Pearl Street Office Building could provide space for the entire Probation Department which is now badly overcrowded. "This space is necessary for the short run even if the plan for renovation of the TB Hospital on Golden Hill and the proposed Infirmary addition were to be approved today," according to the Building Committee.

Projected plans for the next 10 years call for converting the TB Hospital into permanent headquarters for the Social Services Department and converting the former infirmary for a public health center. Principal planning recommendations include reserving the present County Office Building for administrative functions and rebuilding the former jail for additional court facilities.

Whispell explained that the Buick property gives flexibility for the future in that it affords access to all four streets surrounding the block. It allows an internal parking system which can be controlled as well as space for building expansion if it should prove necessary in the future. It also enables the county to consider using the Main Street parking lot, for building expansion.

With regard to the price of the Buick property, Kuhlmann indicated that a study of comparable sales of land in the uptown area of the city shows the price to be fair.

The offer is $235,000 for outright purchase, $80,000 for each of three years with no interest, or purchase of the parking area for $175,000 and lease of the office building for five years.

The legislature will vote on a proposal at its regular March 13 meeting at 8 p.m. in the County Office Building.

New Sewage Treatment Plant

Saugerties Acquiring Plot of Land

By CARL GRAHAM

SAUGERTIES

The Saugerties Village Board voted Monday night to acquire a 5.38-acre of land for the proposed sewage treatment plant.

Village Attorney William Brinnier said that project engineers had recommended buying the property for the new and larger treatment plant, which must also serve the Barclay Heights area. The plot lies north and west of the present treatment plant in an area generally bounded by Old Dock Street on the west, Post Street on the north, Lighthouse Drive on the east, and Esopus Creek on the south, and which includes a parcel of unknown ownership. Brinnier said anyone claiming the unknow parcel would be required to pay back taxes on it.

Mayor Vernon "Joe" Benjamin named Trustee Walter Keefe to work with Brinnier in negotiating with property owners and in setting prices for the land.

The board also voted to make Keefe the official board representative in dealing with state and federal authorities on the treatment plant project.

Brinnier said that regulations formerly requiring the mayor to sign for the village had been changed and now require the trustee most directly involved. Keefe is the board's sanitation commissioner.

The board voted to put to public referendum the village's position on a proposed nuclear power generating site in Cementon, near the northern village limits. Trustee Erika Hinchey first proposed that the board go on record in opposition to a nuclear plant there, but Keefe suggested it be put to a public vote.

"There are many pros and cons on this," Keefe said. "Since there is an election coming up, let's put it on the ballot and let the people vote on it."

Brinnier said it would be impossible to ge t the issue on the ballot by the March 18 village election, so the board approved Trustee Richard Underhill's motion to hold the referendum "at the earliest possible opportunity" after first defeating Mrs. Hinchey's resolution by a 5-2 vote.

Mrs. Hinchey objected to a broadcast editorial by Kingston radio executive Harry Thayer in which she said he condemned village police for allegedly covering up an investigation into a shooting in the village. Mrs. Hinchey, the police commissioner, defended the department and noted that the investigation is still under way. "If Mr. Thayer has more information than we do he should be a good citizen and come forward with it," she said.

The board approved fire department officers for one year terms beginning April 1. The list includes Chief Edward Haines, First Assistant Chief Don McCaig, Second Assistant Chief Robert Wade Sr., and company captains Peter Karashay, Snyder Hose Company; Robert Mignano, Lynch Hose Company; Kevin Doyle, Washington Hook and Ladder; and Charles Meiswinkel, fire police.

In other action, the board:

- Voted to raise firemen's standby pay from the present $1.50 to the minium wage standard.
- Set public hearings preceding the March 17 board meeting to consider the report of the Environmental Assessment Council and to consider a no parking resolution for 150 feet on the north side of Main Street in front of the post office.
- Approved the use of Cantine Field by Saugerties Jaycees for the July 4 celebration provided it does not interfere with Little League activities.

Solution to UDC Problems Still Sought

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — With the Urban Development Corp. operating in a financial limbo, Gov. Hugh L. Carey today faced the task of convincing reluctant legislators to approve his request for $110 million in cash to meet the housing agency's day-to-day money needs.

Republican leaders in the Senate rejected the governor's plea for immediate action to keep contractors working at unfinished UDC projects, indicating they could not get approval for the appropriation without commitments from major New York banks for long-term backing.

The Democratic-controlled Assembly adjourned Monday without considering the UDC cash grant and without comment from leaders regarding how members of that house had reacted to the latest in a series of proposals by the Democratic governor to rescue the UDC from bankruptcy.

Carey's formal request for the money said it was necessary "to keep contractors and employes on the job so as to avoid destruction of values in the corporation's partially completed housing projects."

Monday's developments came after the banks had seized operating cash the UDC held in bank accounts and applied the funds against $135 million in loans on which the UDC had defaulted.

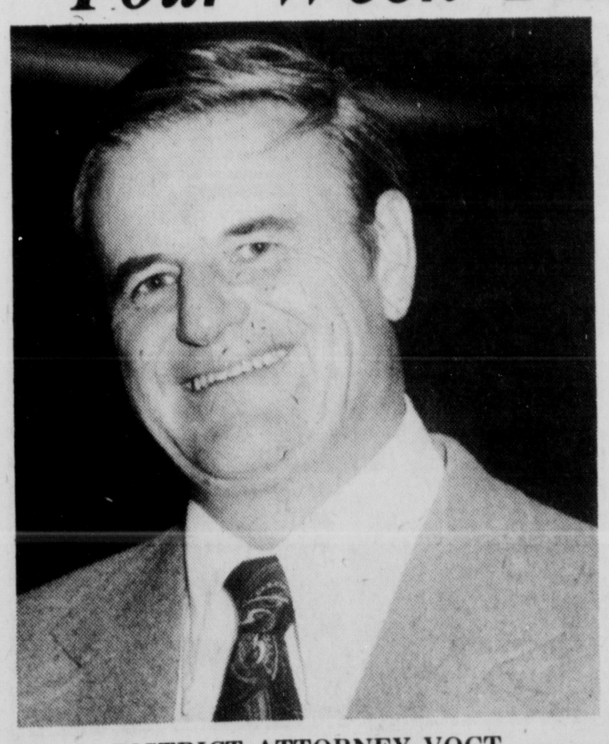

Despite Carey's warning that the funds "are needed immediately," Warren M. Anderson, Senate majority leader, told newsmen, "I think I'm going to have some problems with members of the legislature" in asking for the full amount.

Anderson indicated that he might be willing to ask for a reduced appropriation, saying that asking for the $110 million was "buying too much time at once." Reportedly, during a Republican conference on the subject, rank and file lawmakers rejected even a compromise that only $30 million be appropriated.

Sen. John J. Marchi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, issued a statement following that conference which labeled Carey's plan as "basically unsound." Marchi said the proposal's "most obvious defect is that it violates the governor's own declaration that he would not ask for any more money from the legislature for the UDC without a reciprocal commitment from the banks."

The Democratic governor asked for the funds with the condition that the banks had promised not to attach the cash to cover outstanding UDC debts, but would permit the funds be used to cover current construction costs.

Four Week Trial Expected . . . Vogt

DISTRICT ATTORNEY VOGT

KINGSTON

"This is not going to be a short trial; I would not be at all surprised if this case were to last four weeks" District Attorney Francis J. Vogt told prospective jurors Monday as jury screening got underway in the long-delayed third murder trial of Gerald McGivern and Charles Culhane.

The selection of 12 jurors and two alternates in the much-publicized case is alone expected to last through this week, as both the prosecution and defense carefully question the potential jurors.

More than 100 potential jurors have been called for the trial of McGivern and Culhane who are accused of killing a Westchester County sheriff's deputy during an alleged escape attempt on the Thruway near Plattekill in 1968.

Two potential jurors, one of whom indicated he had already decided the innocence or guilt (he did not say which) of the pair, were dismissed Monday by consent of both the prosecution and defense. Each side will be allowed 20 peremptory challenges during jury selection, which is slated to get underway again today at 2 p.m.

Presiding in the case is Schoharie County Judge Robert Ecker, who was assigned when Judge Raymond J. Mino disqualified himself from the case last year. Mino had presided in the first two trials of the pair.

Prosecuting the case are Vogt and First Assistant DA Michael Kavanagh. Defense attorneys are Karen Peters, representing McGivern, and Henry Rothblatt, representing Culhane.

Numerous questions were asked of the potential jurors Monday, including many concerning their knowledge of the case gained through the news media.

Both previous trials of the pair were widely publicized.

The first trial in 1970 ended in a hung jury.

In 1971 a jury returned a guilty verdict against McGivern and Culhane, and they were both sentenced to die in the electric chair. But later the death sentence was overturned and then a new trial was ordered by the Appellate Division because of technical irregularities in jury selection during the second trial.

Jury selection got underway Monday despite attempts by Rothblatt during the past two months to have the case adjourned until later this year on grounds that he (Rothblatt) was not well enought to defend the case.

State Planning Office Approves $10,000 for City

KINGSTON

A $10,000 grant to review and update the City of Kingston's first year's application for funds under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 has been announced by the New York State Office of Planning Services.

The city is eligibile to receive annual grant appropriations totaling to a five-year commitment of $5,436,000, according to City Planning Director Robert Pritchard.

The grant was made available under the Comprehensive Planning and Management Assistance Program administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. It will be used to produce a "Development Activity Program", identifying community development needs and objectives and setting forth a detailed list of local projects eligible for grant program funding. The grant will also allow for assembling data for the writing of an "annual performance report" of first year community development program accomplishments.

The annual performance report will include a detailed assessment of the effectiveness of Kingston's community development program activities as to how they meet both national objectives and the needs and objectives of the community. The report is required also to evaluate housing assistance provided during the first year and include comments and records of environmental review, equal opportunity, citizen participation and public information processes.

Local Government Changes Proposed

STAMFORD

A consultant to the Catskill Study Commission has recommended a number of changes in the structure and operation of local government in order to improve the efficiency and quality of public services.

Although many of the consultant's recommendations were included in the commission's preliminary report that was released three weeks ago, the report wasn't formally made public until today.

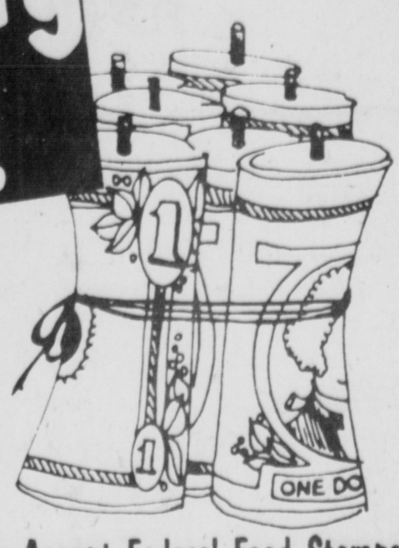

William R. Ginsberg, who served as counsel and director of research for the former Wagner Commission, suggested that many improvements in local government can only be achieved by enlarging the size of the service area, thereby enlarging the revenue base.

Ginsberg said specifically that the "most desirable" means in which to improve local governmental services is to shift the responsibility for a particular function to a higher level of government, such as the county. Functions most appropriate for county control, he said, are assessment of real property, solid waste disposal, increased road maintenance, land use planning and implementation, police support services and liquid waste treatment.

Wallace Running

While the Jacksons, the Udalls, the Carters and the others mount their campaigns to become the Democra ic standard-bearer in 1976, they can't help but look behind them at a still unannounced candidate who they all know will give them a terrific battle.

Like the man who came to dinner, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace refuses to go away. While he has made no mention of his expected role in the coming presidential campaign, other than to promise to "continue to speak out on national affairs," his campaign machine is ready to roll.

Even in the 1972 campaign his surprising strength in the primaries demonstrated the changing mood of the country. Without question the present state of the economy, the uncertainties besetting voters, the fears of foreign entanglements will work in favor of the Alabaman who purports to speak for the masses.

It's a strange turn of events. It was only 12 years ago that Mr. Wallace was the object of almost universal derision, the man who personified segregation, the man who stood in a university doorway and defied armed troops seeking to gain admission of a single black.

Blacks have come a long way since then and so has Wallace.

Blacks have been standouts on nationally-ranked University of Alabama football teams and have starred in many fields of endeavor in other universities below the Mason-Dixon line.

Wallace himself took the almost unprecedented step when he was installed as governor of Alabama last month for a third term of naming a black newspaper publisher to his cabinet, the first in that state at least since Reconstruction.

It is hard to pinpoint what brought about his change in philosophy. It would be nice to think that he saw the error of his ways and realized that segreagation was wrong and could only accentuate strife and dissention between the races.

That's possible. As he fought courageously to recover from the bullet wound administered by a white man, he has had ample time to think. Immobilized and in constant pain, he might have recognized the suffering of a less-fortunate people, also immobilized by white man's bias and hatred and discrimination.

But more likely he is being a shrewd politician, doing what is expedient and profitable.

And it has paid off. In last fall's race for governor, he won better than 20 per cent of the black vote and in his January inauguration address he declaimed that Alabama had proved to the nation its concern for all citizens and he vowed black and white would live together in harmony.

Regardless of the reason for the dramatic about-face in attitude, the other candidates know he is going to be the man to beat and already millions of Americans are being solicited for financial contributions to the Wallace campaign.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Amin Wants Turkish Invasion Lessons

By JACK ANDERSON
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The madcap dictator of Uganda, Gen. Idi Amin, has asked the Turks for advice on how to stage an invasion.

He was so impressed with the Turkish landing on Cyprus that he has asked Turkey's president, Fahri Koruturk, to send "a high-powered military delegation" to Uganda.

The dictator — a fat former sergeant who has butchered his share of opponents — requested that the Turkish mission be "led by the officer who spearheaded the (Cyprus) invasion."

"I will be most obliged," wired Amin, "if the delegation brings with it films about it so that I can have a clear and vivid picture of how it was successfully carried out."

He wants the Turks to teach him how he, too, can conduct successful conquests. He is dreaming of the day, apparently, when his army will march across the white-ruled nations of southern Africa.

The Cyprus invasion, he advised Koruturk, "can be considered to be one of the most remarkable ones in history and is an excellent guide and lesson for us in Africa who live on the same continent as the racist regimes in southern Africa.

"We may one day be compelled to launch a counterinvasion against those arch-enemies of free Africa. As a professional soldier, an expert on counterinvasion and a leader who is deeply committed to the liberation of the whole continent of Africa, I am keen on being briefed in detail on the techniques and tactics that were used."

SPARKMAN-GO-ROUND: Powerful friends of Sen. John Sparkman, D.-Ala., are determined to take over an abandoned Army ammunition plant and the senator won't take "no" for an answer.

The plant is located on 6,411 acres, worth millions, in Talladega County, Ala. To acquire the property, the senator's friends formed a company called ARDCO. Its president is Hubert Hubbard, a Sparkman crony, who is also Talladega County's sanitation director.

He has been negotiating to purchase the plant, alternately representing the company and the county — an exercise in hat-changing that sometimes bewilders the government. His bargaining has had the backing of both Alabama senators, John Sparkman and James Allen.

Two Talladega County judges, G. Kyser Leonard and William Sullivan, have also gone to Washington to push the sale. There have been overtures, too, from Birmingham attorney Maurice Bishop, a power in Alabama, with close ties to Gov. George Wallace.

But gracious old John Sparkman has brought the heavies pressure on the government to grant the multimillion-dollar land bonanza to his friends. They want the property, as Bishop put it in a preliminary letter, "for recreational, housing and industrial land use."

Sparkman has made repeated approaches to the General Services Administration, which handles surplus government property. But under the law, GSA can't sell the plant to ARDCO without offering it first to state and local governments.

This has made absolutely no impression upon the senator, who merely brushes aside the legal requirement and keeps badgering the GSA to make a deal with ARDCO. His first letter to GSA, urging consideration for ARDCO, arrived in December 1973, even before ARDCO had filed its incorporation papers.

There was another letter in March 1974. Cautiously, GSA informed Sparkman that ARDCO was not eligible yet for the property and GSA would have to follow its regulations.

Yet two months later, according to a handwritten note in the GSA files, "Senator Sparkman inquired . . . Senator had constituent who wanted to buy property." Actually, the call was made by a member of the senator's staff.

Not long afterward, Sparkman's chief aide, Rob Locklin, set up a June 1974 meeting for the ARDCO advocates with top GSA officials. To make sure they got a favorable hearing, Locklin attended himself, along with two aides from Sen. Allen's office.

At the meeting, GSA representatives repeated wearily that "ARDCO does not appear to be an eligible party with which we can negotiate under the law."

Nevertheless, Sparkman's office called GSA again on behalf of ARDCO in two months. In November, Locklin set up still another meeting with GSA for the ARDCO group. And once again, the answer was "no."

A few days later, the situation slipped into comedy. Another appeal arrived from ARDCO. In quiet desperation, a GSA official wrote to his boss: "I don't know how many times we have to tell them." Back came a patient, hand-scrawled note: "At least once more."

Sure enough, Sparkman put the heat on again. Just a few weeks ago, he sent another in his series of letters to the GSA asking for still more "consideration" of ARDCO's bid "and for a report, thereon, in duplicate."

Footnote: A GSA spokesman said they didn't feel Sparkman was "twisting our arm" but acknowledged such heavy pressure does "not come too often." In behalf of the senator, Locklin said: "All we've done is to respond to requests from constituents." The meetings were set up, he said, to give ARDCO a chance to explore the situation fully with GSA.

Moynihan Decries the Loss of Liberty

One of the few things in the world about which there is reason continuously to rejoice is Daniel Patrick Moynihan. Sure, he suffers from a few birthmarks of the social democrat, fascinated by the role of government in shaping human happiness. But these fade alongside his rubicund complextion, which is a regular inflamed blush of indignation and rage over the failure of the free world, and of America in particular, to tell the simple truth where liberty is concerned.

"I have an even disposition," Albert Jay Nock once said," — "I'm mad all the time." Mr. Moynihan is mad all the time, notwithstanding his extraordinary restraint in expressing himself publicly. During his entire tenure as Ambassador to India he made only four public declarations, two of these in the last fortnight of his stay. His fifth he wrote out — and then elected not to give, for fear that he might be abusing his position as Ambassador to utter thoughts inconsistent with the thrust of our diplomatic rhetoric.

But now, as a Professor once again, he is wild with liberty, and when he was called before the Commission on Critical Choices for Americans, whose duty one suspects will be, after painful inquiry, to present the United States with the critical choice of Rockefeller for President or international disintegration, Moynihan let them have it — in this case, the Third World.

He has nothing against the Third World, and I do not either, except one thing: which is that the Third World, particularly within the United Nations, is giving encephalophonic voice to the greatest historical travesty in recorded history, to wit that the United States of America is the principal agent of human misery and repression.

Mr. Moynihan has in the past, and will in the future, give a thousand examples. One was publicized. Last year, elected as the President of the General Assembly, was one Abdelaziz Bouteflika of Algeria, who proceeded to run the General Assembly much as his boss Mr. Boumedienne runs Algeria; i.e. as his private satrapy. Now Algeria talks about human rights as frenziedly as Rossini handled his overtures. But did anybody rise, in that great forum of world idealism, to ask the new President what had happened to Ahmed Ben Bella, the Algerian revolutionary who has been rotting in jail for years?

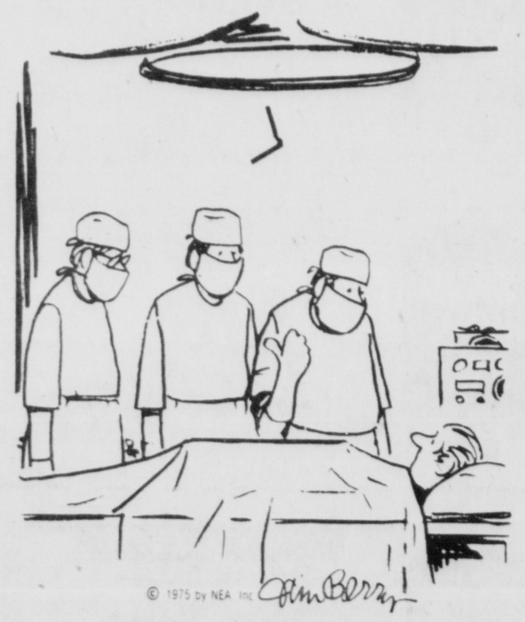

Not only did nobody do it, nobody thought to do it — and this is how serious the situation has become.

Mr. Moynihan was twice offered the Ambassadorship to the U.N., and twice turned it down. "That corpse had already begun to decompose," he subsequently wrote. "If I am sorry for such language, I am even more sorry for the events which make it appropriate. The spirit of liberty has seeped out of that institution. A Death of a Thousand Cuts had occurred. An incessant succession of small cuts and tiny punctures had led to a steady draining of vitality, all but unnoticed to the over-familiar eye, but painfully evident from a distance."

Mr. Moynihan quite genuinely fears that the spirit of liberty is very nearly extinct all over the world. He is most awesomely, most gravely correct.

"How does one discover a society is slipping into a Dark Age," Mr. Nock once asked himself in a journal? One way is by consulting such as Mr. Moynihan.

Berry's World

"This is my assistant and the other fellow is my attorney!"

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Heading Toward a Planned Economy

BEVERLY HILLS — Stanley Sheinbaum is one of those sinister, radic-lib millionaires whom Evans and Novak like to warn us about. As he's the man who raised the money for the Ellsberg trail defense and one who has gathered funds for some of our more liberal politicians, you can see why Sheinbaum would bother people who think all the dough should be on one side.

But whichever side he may be on, Sheinbaum isn't your average, mentally inert moneybags contributing to campaigns out of ignorant passion. Indeed, although he married into a very wealthy movie family, it was his radic-lib understanding of what our society was doing to itself which enabled him to make many millions more. Back in the days when businessmen and economists said it would never happen, he saw that the dollar was going to be devalued and that anybody with the boldness to invest a lot of money in a sound currency like deutschemarks was going to make a tremendous profit. He did and literally doubled his wife's family's fortune.

This same kind of analysis has impelled him to see what's happening to the country in terms completely different from those of the leading people in the Democratic party with whom he does his political business For Sheinbaum, what we're living through now isn't a temporary bit of bad economic luck that we can snap out of with a few fast, jazzy economic programs. "I feel that the country is in worse straits than the immediate situation indicates. The economy is not going to get back on its feet," he says, pointing out that the debt for the the past two decades is coming due.

As Sheinbaum sees the situation, the waste of the past has gobbled up the capital which we now need to bring the economy back to a high level of prosperity. No one knows how industry is going to get the billions upon billions of investment capital it needs.

This brings Sheinbaum to what he calls the "hidden agenda of American politics," by which he means the demands of major American cpaitalists like Henry Ford for a planned economy which will provide industry with its money. "That need for capital" he concludes, "may be the final thing that will force us into a totalitarian state.

By that he doesn't mean guys in leather boots, black uniforms and swastika armbands. What he has in mind is facism without lamp shade factories, but nevertheless a "state capitalism" in which the market system is effectively destroyed so that to get the money industry needs for investment, corporations like the Ford Motor Copmany will no longer have to do it by selling cars. The money, whether through credit allocation, a new version of the disgraced Reconstruction Finance Corporation or some other gimmick, would come to Ford through the government.

The proposed tax cut may be the last time the old methods of trying to hype the economy upward will be used. If that fails, then Sheinbaum's hidden agenda must become the only agenda, and, as he says, the question will be who is going to do the planning for the benefit of whom?

Sheinbaum and a few somewhat like-minded liberal fat cats have been meeting informally with labor leaders and other elements of the party. He reports that in these meetings men like Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, are already so desperate about the job situation that they are, in effect, willing to surrender the economic planning functions to the mega-corporations. More depressing for a person with Sheinbaum's views is that the old guard liberals in his party aren't even aware of the implications of these decisions. It doesn't occur to them there might be other ways of achieving the same economic effects because, "even good liberal Democrats have bought the business ethic lock, stock and barrel. You see them scrambling over each other to be Republicans."

Sheinbaum realizes that the liberal wing of his party has run out of ideas. "The liberal dreams are shattered. Anti-trust is a farce, regulation is regulation is a farce, liberals are at a dead end," he says.

The easy inevitability with which the great social objectives of the American liberal past have been converted to the furtherance of trickle-down capitalism is a much more serious consideration for a man like Sheinbaum than the traditional ones that occupy fat cats. Marooned in the middle of a party without direction or a sense of destiny, there is little for him to do but to shuffle through the debris of presidential candidates, perhaps ultimately to back one who doesn't have the wildest idea of what Sheinbaum is concerned about or why.

Walker All-Star Selection

KINGSTON

Rachid Walker, following a succession of Ulster County Community College basketball stars, was named to a first team berth on the Region XV All Star Team for 1974-75.

Walker, a freshman guard from Boys High, was the third highest vote-getter in the poll of coaches. Allen Thompson of Westchester led the list and earned the region's Most Valuable Player Award with 110 points, Kevin Tucker of Staten Island received 97 points, and Walker had 83 points.

Rounding out the top five are Gil Green of Suffolk and Otis Fenn of New York City who each polled 79 points.

The second team consists of Pete Eason of Post, Lew Michaux of Westchester, Rich Addison of Farmingdale, Bill McGeorge of Rockland and Gary Clark of Hosos. Eason, one of two repeaters on the honor squad, was a first team choice last year. Thompson was a second team selection. Clark and Fenn were Honorable Mention in '74, and Fenn was this year's MVP in the regional tournament.

Coach of the Year was Westchester's Ralph Arietta.

Walker led the Senators to a 17-6 record this season and topped UCCC in several departments. He finished with 429 points averaging 19.1 per game and was among the Region XV leaders in assists and foul shooting. He scored more than 20 points in ten games, hit 30 or more three times, and pumped in a season high of 34 against Manhattan.

"He was the only real superstar we had," said his coach, Mike Bernstein. "He was the only guy who could make things happen."

Walker is the seventh Ulster player to receive All Region honors. Jerry Moss, Glenn Berry, Henry Nixon, Jackie Knowles, Coleman Link and Ike Chestnut also won selection. Besides Walker only Moss, a two-time All Star, made the team as a freshman.

Arkansas Gems Set For County Games

KINGSTON

The Arkansas Gems, a world wide known all-girls basketball team, are scheduled for two appearances in Ulster County this month.

Their first game is scheduled Wednesday, March 12 at 8 p.m. at the Ellenville High School gym against the Ellenville High faculty.

Two days later, Friday, March 14, at 8 p.m. the Gems will be in the Kate Walton field house in Kingston facing an all-star men's team in a game sponsored by Senior Babe Ruth League of Kingston. The Ellenville game is under the sponsorship of the Eddie Nissenbaum Leaders Club Scholarship Fund.

Tickets for the Ellenville game are on sale in the main office of the Ellenville Central School. Tickets for the field house contest may be purchased at Kaye Sportwair, Lou's Delicatessen and Yallum's on Wall Street in Kingston.

The Gems, known as the Clown Jewels of Basketball, are led by "Miss Basketball" herself, Elvira (Peps) Newman. Miss Neuman is a living legend in the sport of girls basketball.

Currently averaging 47 points a game, Peps is a sparkling example of everything right. Whether shooting a hook shot from half court, a 35-foot swisher, twisti driving layup or free throws from her knees, fans will be amazed at her remarkable shooting percentage.

Hailing from Eden Valley, Minnesota, this 5-6 ball of fire could easily make any girls team in the world on her outstanding dribbling and ball handling alone.

Known as the "Bob Cousy of Girls Basketball", Miss Neuman is the only female ever to have her uniform enshrined in the Nais with National Basketball Hall of Fame in a Springfield, Mass. She has a career high single game score of 108 points.

Tickets will be on sale at the oor for the Ellenville and Kingston games.

Boo's Sweep SAA Premier Loop

SAUGERTIES

Boo's Tavern won over Acker's Bar 73-66 in their rubber game of the season to take the season's series, avenge their only loss and add the second half pennant to their first half flag and match the best won-lost record in league history with a 14-1 record.

Although Boo's triumph only matched them with Acker's in the loss column, they were credited with second half honors as the result of head-to-head results.

In other action, The Outrigger hit the century mark for the fourth straight time in drubbing Annandale Hotel 118-84 and Ethan Allen Archery pulled a 91-86 upset over Naccarato's Insurance.

Acker's tied Boo's at 60-60 after trailing 57-50 after three quarters, but the Brewmeisters pulled away for their 7-point margin. John Carnright led Boo's with 18 points and 9 assists. Ray Lindhorst contributed 22 rebounds and Warrn Gritmon had 8 assists to go with 13 points. Jim Alba had a super night for Acker's with 21 points and 22 rebounds. Scott Miller had 18 points and 9 rebounds.

Outriggers breezed two near records with 71 rebounds to eclipse the old mark of 69 and Ron Chando deliveered 20 assists to nip the old mark of 19 held jointly by Warren Gritmon and Nelson Marcelle. Almost lost in the record counts was a 40-point effort by A.J. Murphy. Chando had 20 points and Ted Wood scored 24 points and picked off 23 rebounds. Gary McDonald was top Annandale performer with 23 points, 19 rebounds and 5 assists. Cal Fowxe and Greg Douglas hit 20 points each.

Earl Edmond contributed 35 points and 16 rebounds to Allen's victory. Frank Allen accounted for 32 points, 7 rebounds and 5 assists. Jack Naccarato rimmed 26 and Ron Thomas 20 for the Insurers. Tim Murphy added 10 assists.

Rachid Dazzled Region XV Fans

FARMINGDALE

The North-South All Star game that preceded the Region XV basketball tournament finals here Saturday night was just a stage for Rachid Walker.

Walker, the freshman guard from Ulster County Community College, dazzled the crowd and the opposition with a 28-point performance in a losing cause as the South took a 106-91 victory.

Walker hit on 11 of 20 shots from the floor, was six of eight from the foul line and dealt 13 assists. "If they had an MVP award," said his coach Mike Bernstein, "he would have got it."

Ulster's Carl Mabry was also in the North lineup and scored eight points while leading the team with eight rebounds.

Host coach Tom Galezzi was praised for putting together a smooth-running tournament, but the Aggie boss would have been happier with a higher finish for his team. After bouncing Ulster in the first round, Farmingdale was walloped by Westchester, 90-75, in the semi-finals.

"I was surprised we lost that badly," Galezzi said afterwards. "They took us out early. We didn't play that badly — we shot 51 per cent, but Westchester was exceptional. They finaly put it all together, and they shot 55 per cent on top of that. We didn't defense them, and their press gave us lots of trouble."

Galezzi wasn't surprised that Westchester's championship victory came by a bare 67-66 margin over New York City.

"New York is a great team with four starters back from the team that won last year. The first time they played each other Westchester won by ten or 12, but that was at Westchester, and it was New York's first game."

The championship battle was close most of the way. Lew Michaux put the Vikings up by three with a pair of foul shots, then New York came back with its final basket.

New York's Mike Johnson, the game's high scorer with 18 points, missed a one-and-one chance after that, and in the last 13 seconds the Bees blew two more opportunities from the field.

Mike Bernstein saw the action, and he called it, "The best played game I've seen all year. There was a lot of contact — the refs let just about everything go — but it was consistent. New York played its zone, and they were ahead until the last two minutes. I think the turning point came about when Don Ingram drew a charging foul on Johnson, and that took him right out of the action."

Division II On Line

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Athletic League's Division II basketball championship, among other things, will be at stake tonight when Marlboro High takes the Pine Bush court to defend its crown against Red Hook.

The winner will get a shot at the UCAL title Thursday against Division I winner, Liberty. Should the Division II champ win that battle, it would then receive a bid to the Section Nine tournament.

Marlboro has ruled Division II for two years, ever since Joe Ciampi took over the coaching duties. The Dukes haven't been overpowering during that stretch — they've been suffocating. Defense, usually in the form of a tight zone, has been the trademark of Ciampi's teams.

The tradition varied slightly this season. Marlboro has scored a little more and given up a little more. It has worked well enough to give Ciampi's squad a 12-4 record.

Recent turns of events have eroded the Dukes' position for the showdown. Marlboro had to accept a forfeit in the season finale when the divider in the OCS gym refused to open, so the freshest game in the Dukes' memory is a sound thrashing by the Raiders.

From the Red Hook standpoint that was a crucial and inspiring victory. It kept the Raiders alive in the race, and they went on to finish with a similar 12-4 record by convincingly beating a good Highland club.

Sawyerettes Close With Win

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties High girls closed out their Dutchess County Girls Basketball League schedule on a winning note with a 59-53 victory over Ketcham High. It was the third win in the last four games for the Sawyerettes and their fifth against eight losses overall.

Ginger Swart racked up 27 points for Saugerties, most coming on easy layups off fast breaks. The Sawyerettes used pinpoint passing by Karen O'Reilly to penetrate the 1-3-1 Ketcham defense. Miss O'Reilly, who played the entire second half with four personal fouls, turned in her best performance of the season with 10 assists and fine ball handling.

Karen Gedney dominated the defensive boards and also had 11 points, her strongest offensive showing. They are the only seniors on a squad that should show vast improvement next season.

Nan Mullenbrook led Ketcham with 22 points and Kay Catane had 14.

A Con Job?

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Davè Concepcion was chattering away as he lay on the ground Monday while minor league pitching instructor Scott Breeden was counting cadence during the daily calisthenics.

"Davey is trying to con me into batting him third in the line-up this season," said Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "That is where he batted this winter in Venezuela. He said he hit .326."

Joe Morgan, the other half of the Reds' keystone combination, joined the club and participated in his first workout Monday.

Artie's Bar Grabs First Place

KINGSTON

Trailing 41-33 at the half, Artie's Bar rebounded with a 20-point fourth quarter to nip Uhl's Construction and take over first place with a 6-1 record in the Central Division of the YMCA "B" Basketball League.

Wells Wolfpack (4-2) of the Central surprised by handing Downs Street Driving of the National Division its first setback after three straight wins. Sonny's Tigers moved over the .500 mark (4-3) with a 83-49 romp over The Jury Box.

Keith Jones paced Artie's with 30 points and Mike Kiernan tossed in 21. George Barnes excelled for Uhl's with 31 points and 25 rebounds. Joe Kershaw rimmed 23 points to go with 21 rebounds.

Al Schmidt paced Sonny's Tigers with 28 points and Mark McElrath added 20. Steve Hannay had nine points and 20 rebounds. Jeff Lucas matched 15 points with 15 rebounds. Top Jury Box scorers were Matt Suppies with 14 and Terry Moore with 12.

Wells Wolfpack jumped to a 11-2 lead over Downs Street and held it until Downs Street tied it with 58 seconds remaining in the third period. The lead changed hands 15 times and the score was tied 12 times before the Wolfpack broke away in the final moments.

NP Protest Denied

NEW PALTZ

The executive commitee of the Ulster County Athletic League denied Monday night a New Paltz High protest of a wrestling match against Onteora High.

The committee ruled that Rule 7, Section 5, Article 2 of the Federation Handbook was properly followed in assessing a team penalty point to a New Paltz assistant coach during the controversial meet at Onteora on Feb. 7.

The rule in question restricts coaches to the bench while the clock is running and during normal out of bounds situations. In other words, a coach may not move to the mat unless there is charged time out to the team.

During the Feb. 7 match between Mike Berger of New Paltz and Bob DeBellis of Onteora, a 108-pound event, New Paltz coach Kemble Matter went to the scorers' table to discuss a possible rules misapplication. At that point, Edward Pfeiffer, the official, stopped the bout to discuss the matter.

As he did, Frank Ciliberto, an assistant New Paltz coach, approached the mat to talk with Berger. As he did, Pfeiffer turned and saw him and then deducted a team point. It was New Paltz's contention that a timeout was called.

In its ruling the committee reported "no evidence in the scorebook of a charged timeout or any recording of any injury timeout." After taking statements and viewing the video tape of the match, the committee said there was "no signal from the official designating a timeout and the official statement reports that he did not call a time out."

The decision thus upholds a tie in the final UCAL wrestling standings. Had New Paltz won the protest, it would have won the match, 25-24, and gain sole possession of first place.

The committee considering the protest included Don Averill of Wallkill, the UCAL president; James McIntyre of Pine Bush, Joyce O'Donnell of Marlboro, Jim Vertucci of Rondout Valley and Fallsburgh's Roland Allen.

Hayes Will Resign

TULSA (UPI) — Ken Hayes, University of Tulsa basketball coach since 1968, announced Monday he would resign in June.

"I am here to publicly announce my resignation as head basketball coach at the University of Tulsa effective with the expiration of my current contract," Hayes said in a meeting at the president's office.

Miller U.S. Cup Coach

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Al Miller, coach of the North American Hockey League Philadelphia Atoms, will coach the U.S. World Cup soccer squad, it was announced Monday.

The squad was scheduled for a four-game tour of Poland and Italy at the end of this month.

The Polish World Cup team finished third behind champion West Germany and runnerup Holland in the World Cup finals last summer at Munich. The Polish Olympic team is defending champion.

The Americans will play Poland's World Cup team March 26 in Posnan and Poland's Olympic team the 28th at Szczecin. It will go on to play pro-select squads April 2 in Rome and April 4 in Milan.

Miller, of Lebanon, Pa., became the first American pro coach in any sport to win a championship with a first-year team when he guided the Atoms to the North American Soccer League crown in 1973.

RR Strike Appears Over

WESTBURY, L.I. (UPI) — A strike by 480 para-mutuel clerks at Roosevelt Raceway appeared over early Tuesday when a tentative contract settlement was reached during all-night bargaining talks between the union and Madison Square Garden, the track's parent company.

A spokesman for Mutuel Tickets Agent Union Local 23293 said the tentative agreement offering the clerks a $3 weekly pay hike in the first year of a new three-year contract, $2 the second year, $1 the third year and additional fringe benefits was reached at 3:12 a.m. after talks which began at 9 p.m. Monday at the Island Inn in Westbury, L.I.

He said the union had recommended acceptance of the agreement and the membership would vote on it at 6 p.m. tonight.

"This is pretty much what we asked for and we expect it (the agreement) to be accepted," the spokesman said. "The picket line has been called off and we'll probably return to work immediately after the ratification vote."

Roosevelt Raceway ran its races without fans Monday night after the para-mutuel clerks set up picket lines at 4:30 p.m. Monday afternoon when contract talks between the union and the track broke down.

Picketing clerks had been hopeful, if the strike was not settled by Tuesday, that the strike would be authorized by the American Federation of Labor and electricians would honor the lines.

Last night's meet opening at Roosevelt will be long remembered.

It was cold and it was quiet. Graveyards have been noisier. The panting of the horses was the only sound until the crack of whips as they drove down the stretch.

Three persons stood in the infield as witnesses to the weird sight. On the other side of the track, a fur-capped security guard was on duty.

As horses were being led off the track following a race, the drivers quickly climbed into a passing sulky on the way to the next race, which would be started less than 10 minutes later.

All this and more, brought to no one courtesy of Off-Track Betting.

The clerks were asking for a raise from $53 a night to $68 within three years. They were being offered a slightly more than $1 a week raise.

Rather than cancel the card and forced OTB to return already-accepted bets, the decision was made to run the races for the benefit of the horsemen and OTB.

Trainer-driver Frank Popfinger said, "As long as the purses stay up I'm willing to run. I think the only reason they are racing tonight is because of the OTB."

"It feels kind a funny to be running without being booed or cheered," said driver Herve Filion. "I just hope it gets straightened out in a week because we can't operate without the public."

The decision has been made to run Tuesday night under the same circumstances, if able. However, OTB already is gearing up Buffalo Raceway for wagering Wednesday.

The nine-race card was televised on a delayed tape basis by New York stations. But the question is, if the strike continues and so does the racing, how long will the horse bettors, a notoriously paranoid bunch, continue to trust races they can't see?

But for those who had money riding on Monday night's card:

Yes, they really ran the races; only three horses went off-stride, the slowest time was 2:07.2 and the fastest was 2:03.2.

Jockey's Guild Against OTB

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Horse racing's security chief told a government commission today that the prospect of a fix at the track is "negligible" and there is no necessity for new federal laws to police the sport at this time.

In addition, a spokesman for the Jockey's Guild urged the special commission studying federal gambling policy against any legalized off-track betting on the horses and said "selfish, greedy" state and local taxes levied on the nation's tracks are ruinous to the sport.

Of the prospects of a race fix, Spencer J. Drayton, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Association (sort of an FBI of the nation's tracks), said in his prepared statement: "In light of the fact that in 1974 member tracks of the TRA (Thoroughbred Racing Association) scheduled 33,966 races during 3,774 days of racing, the number of instances of fraud was negligble."

From the riders' standpoint, Nick Jemas, managing director and secretary of the Jockey's guild, said in his prepared statement that off-track betting "is a political racket and a patronage gimmick."

Jemas said: "When a state or a city gets into the gambling business, whether it is off-track betting or lotteries, there is never enough money for them because of their bureaucracy and layer upon layer of administrative personnel that they hire to handle a business of which they have absolutely no knowledge. There must be, in my opinion, a federal law prohibiting interstate off-track betting."

As head of the track protective agency, Drayton reported to the 16-member commission that includes eight congressmen that his organization has on files 301,600 sets of fingerprints of track employes subjected to a police arrest record check and 282,000 lip tattooos of horses.

Drayton deplored newly developed "exotic wagering" adopted by many tracks, such as the exacta, superperfecta and trifecta. He said that during 1971 there was an outbreak of tranquilization cases and "almost without exception" they involved "horses entered in races featuring exotic wagering."

He said the "gimmick betting" devices have prompted a significant increase in surveillance of possible fixes at the tracks and commented: "The large payoffs associated with exotic wagering makes it attractive to those who would conspire to influence the outcome of such races."

Drayton also acknowledged that the growth of non-hard drugs is posing a problem for his policing.

He told the commission: "The use of so-called hard drugs has been cut to minimum but use of hormones, massive vitamin injections and the development of certain analgesic which are non-narcotic painkillers, has created a promblem."

Americans Devour Russian Leftovers

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The United States track team devoured a group of unknown Soviet athletes Monday night but Coach Frank Costello says his team could beat any squad the Russians can come up with.

A number of world class Russians failed to make it here for the fourth annual U.S.U.S.S.R track meet, going to Warsaw instead for the European Championships this weekend.

The Americans, led by two West Coast college coeds, ran circles around the Russian leftovers for a 171-106 victory. The American men won 98-62 while the women scored an equally convincing 73-44 victory.

"The score might have been closer if the Russians had their best athletes," said Costello, "but I believe we could have been beaten any team they could come up with. We're looking extremely strong."

Francie Larrieu, a cocky 22year-old junior at UCLA, turned in the fastest mile ever run by a woman, breaking her indoor mark for both the mile and the 1,500 meters.

Her 4:28.5 mile was a half-second better than the mark she set Feb. 15 in San Diego and she was clocked a tenth of a second faster in the 1,500, with a 4:09.8. Her mile was the fastest on record indoors or out.

Joni Hundley, a freshman at Oregon State, keep the fans in their seats past midnight in the Richmond Coliseum as she broke her own American indoor best with a high jump of 6-2½. The 18-year-old redhead is the only American woman ever to clear six feet.

The bright light for the Russians was 38-year-old Vladimir Golubnichi, who trudged to a world record 19:46.2 in the three mile walk.

The Americans won 21 of the 26 events, taking the top two spots in 14.

Charles Foster, a 21-year-old senior at North Carolina Central, tied the world amateur best in the 60-yard hurdles with a time of 6.8 seconds.

Besides the three mile walk, the only other events the Russians won were the pole vault, women's two mile run, women's shot put and men's triple jump.

World champion Americans Dwight Stones (high jump) and Rick Wolhuter (880 yard run) won their specialties with ease. Stones was unable to match his world record of 7-5½, clearing 7-3. Wolhuter, who also anchored the men's winning medley relay team, ran the 880 in 1:49.4.

A couple of American high school students took the men's and women's 60-yard dashes. Houston McTear, an 18-year-old from Baker, Fla., turned in a 6.0 and Angel Doyle, a 16-yearold from Harrisburg, Pa., had a 6.6.

George Frenn, a 33-year-old special education teacher in Hawaiian Gardens, Calif., opened the meet by winning the 35-pound weight throw with a heave of 70-feet, 2½ inches.

Costello sized up the meet, saying, "The veterans did what was expected of them and the young kids did a fantastic job, particularly the women."

"I try to break the record ever time I run," said Miss Larrieu, who noted that in addition to the mile and 1,500 meter races, she also holds the indoor bests for the two-mile, 3,000 meters and 1,000 meters.

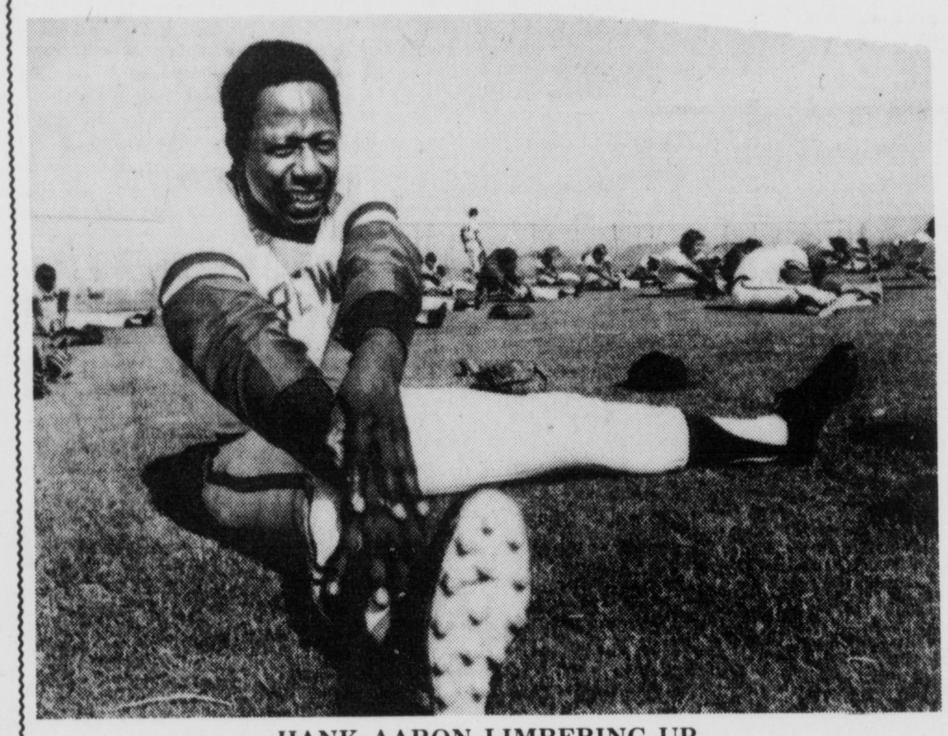

"I felt sluggish when I first got on the track, but after warming up I felt good and believed I coult set the record," the 5-4, 105-pound brunette said.

Miss Larrieu said the meet was her last indoors this season and that she is now looking forward to the outdoor season where she hopes to continue to smash records.

"I think very highly of my ability and believe I can set the records," she said.

Miss Hundley attributed her record soaring leap to desire.

"I wanted the record tonight and was able to do it," she said.

HANK AARON LIMBERING UP

(UPI)

Aaron, Mantle In Spotlight

Spring training is supposed to "belong" to rookies but two oldtimers took center stage Monday — Hank Aaron and Mickey Mantle.

Aaron, putting on the uniforn of the Milwaukee Brewers for the first time in 10 years, delighted his teammates and a tiny crowd of 87 persons by hitting three balls out of the park during batting practice.

"It fits a little better than the Braves' uniform," said Aaron, referring to his strained relations with the Atlanc club during the latter part of the 1974 season.

Aaron, the all-time home run leader with 733, was acquired by the Brewers to be their designated hitter. He arrived in camp at 208 pounds—eight more than the poundage at which he played last season.

Mantle, joining in with the tremendous enthusiasm in the New York Yankees' camp at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., said the club is just one infielder away from being on a par with the great teams for which he played in the 1960s.

"If they can add another infielder, they could be as good as the ones I played with," said Mantle, a batting instructor for the club during spring training. "I just wish they had an infield that could compare with Clete Boyer, Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson and Joe Pepitone. I never saw one better than that on the club when I was with the Yankees."

Elsewhere around the spring training circuit:

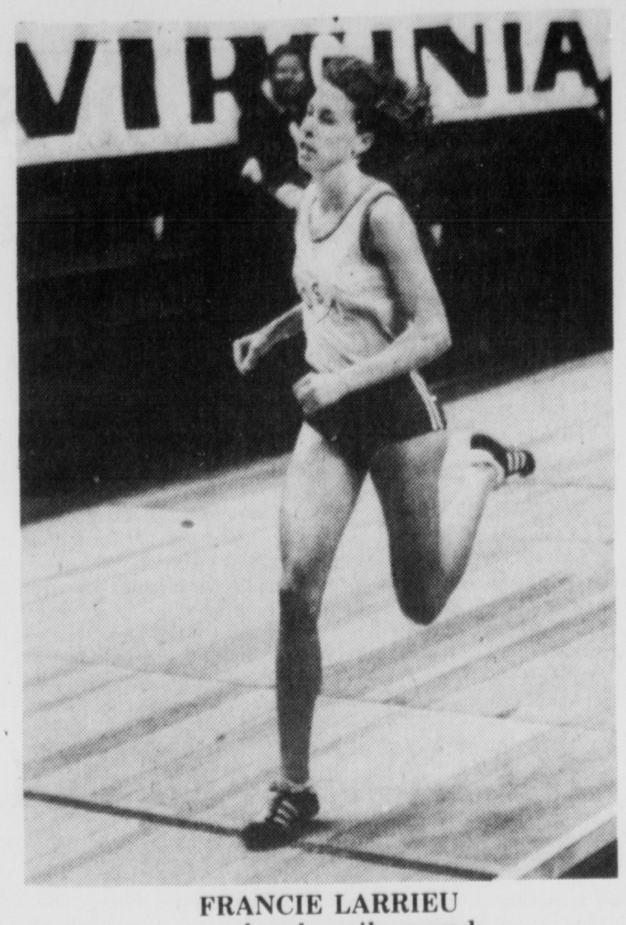

Manager Jack McKean sais he is toning down the optimism that infected the Kansas City Royals' camp in 1974 and which, he believes, contributed to their late-season collapse. The Royals were only five games behind the Oakland A's late last season before losing 19 of 22 games and plunging to fifth place in the American League West...

Reggie Jackson became the fifth member of the World Champion Oakland A's to work out at first base this spring in the club's search to find a place for young Claudell Washington in the regular lineup. Everything he did looked natural," said A's manager Al Dark of Jackson's initial stint, "and that's very unusual for a guy on the first time."

Manager Darrell Johnson of the Bston Red Sox said he is starting spring training with the conviction that he has six sure regulars: cather Carlton Fisk, first baseman Carl Yastrzemski, second baseman Doug Griffin, shortstop Rick Burleson, third baseman Rico Petrocelli and right-fielder Dwight Evans...Two homers by Joe Ferguson were the big blows of an intra squad game played by the Los Angeles Dodgers. NL MVP Steve Garvey also had three hits in the game.

Newly-acquired first baseman Boog Powell agreed to terms with the Cleveland Indians for an estimated $75,000, leaving outfielder Oscar Gamble as the team's lone holdout...Pitchers Mike Torrez and Bob Reynolds agreed to terms with the Baltimore Orioles...Although rookie Keith Hernandez has been "conceded" the St. Louis Cardinals' regular first base job, 36-year-old Ron Fairly says he thinks he can win it.

The New York Mets said they have no interest in dickering for Dick Allen, the disappearing slugger who has refused to report to the Braves after being sold to them by the Chicago White Sox.. Andy Kosco signed with the Philadelphia Phillies after a short holdout...Pitcher Joe Decker, a 16-game winner for the Minnesota Twins in 1974, was hit on the head by a line drive while pitching batting practice but apparently was not seriously injured.

Big Ten Quintets Scrambling for Spots

No. 1-ranked Indiana may have sewed up the Big Ten basketball title a week and a half ago but four other Big Ten coaches still are talking as if it were the football season and the Rose Bowl were at stake.

One reason is the new NCAA tournament format, which adds seven at-large teams to the first round of play, allowing more than just conference champions to compete for the national title.

Monday night the unbeaten Hoosiers were idle but the rest of the league powers were scrambling for the spoils. Michigan nipped Illinois 77-75 to remain in a second-place tie with Minnesota, a 65-58 victor over Wisconsin. Both teams could have a shot at an NCAA berth when bids go out Thursday.

Michigan State knocked Purdue out of second with an 84-82 win that left the teams tied for fourth and hoping for an invitation to either the Conference Commissioners Tournament in St. Louis or the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Michigan stalled out the last 56 seconds of its game with Illinois and Joe Johnson hit a last-second 15-foot jump shot to give the Wolverines the twopoint win. It raised their league record to 11-6 and their overall mark to 18-7, identical to Minnesota's.

"It's no secret that Michigan has been on the short end of votes by the NCAA and Big Ten before," Johnson said afterward, referring to votes the last two years to send Ohio State's football team to the Rose Bowl when the Buckeyes and Wolverines tied for the title.

Michigan Coach John Orr snapped about his team's lack of national recognition, "I'm not going to get upset if they pick Minnesota. Maybe if we win 25 games, we might even get rated."

Surging Michigan State, although a game out of second place, figured it ought to be considered for post-season play, too. The Spartans rallied from a 51-39 deficit to go ahead of Purdue, only to see Bruce Parkinson tie the game on a shot with eight seconds left. Smooth-shooting Terry Furlow, who led the Spartans with 27 points, swished a fall-away, 30foot jump shot with three seconds left in the game for the win.

"It was like two NBA teams vying for a playoff berth," MSU Coach Gus Ganakas said. "I think the win earned us a tournament berth. We have a lot to offer to the NIT. We have a lot of blacks for the New York fans to watch. Our coaching staff is made up of an Italian and a black and I'm Greek."

Freshman-dominated Minnesota clamped its ferocious defense on Wisconsin in the first half, holding the Badgers to 16 points. Then, behind freshman Mark Olberding's 25 points, the young Gophers turned on the fast break and coasted to the win. They finished their home schedule with a 12-1 record.

In the only other conference game, Iowa assured itself of escaping last place with a double-overtime 65-58 win over Northwestern, leaving the Wildcats, Illinois and Wisconsin in the cellar entering the final day of play Saturday. Bruce King sank six free throws in the second overtime for the Hawkeyes.

Baby's Lib Program In Saugerties

Members of the Saugerties Jayncees are concered about babies born in this country with physical or mental birth defects. They claim the percentage is as high as eight per cent. If every baby was as healthy as Little Donald Baker, pictured here, there wouldn't be any problems. But such is not the case.

According to the Saugerties Jayncees, one baby every two minutes or 700 per day or 250,000 per year are born with some defect. It is also claimed that 500,000 babies a year die before birth and half the deaths during pre-school years and almost two-fifths of elementary school age deaths are directly or indirectly due to birth defects.

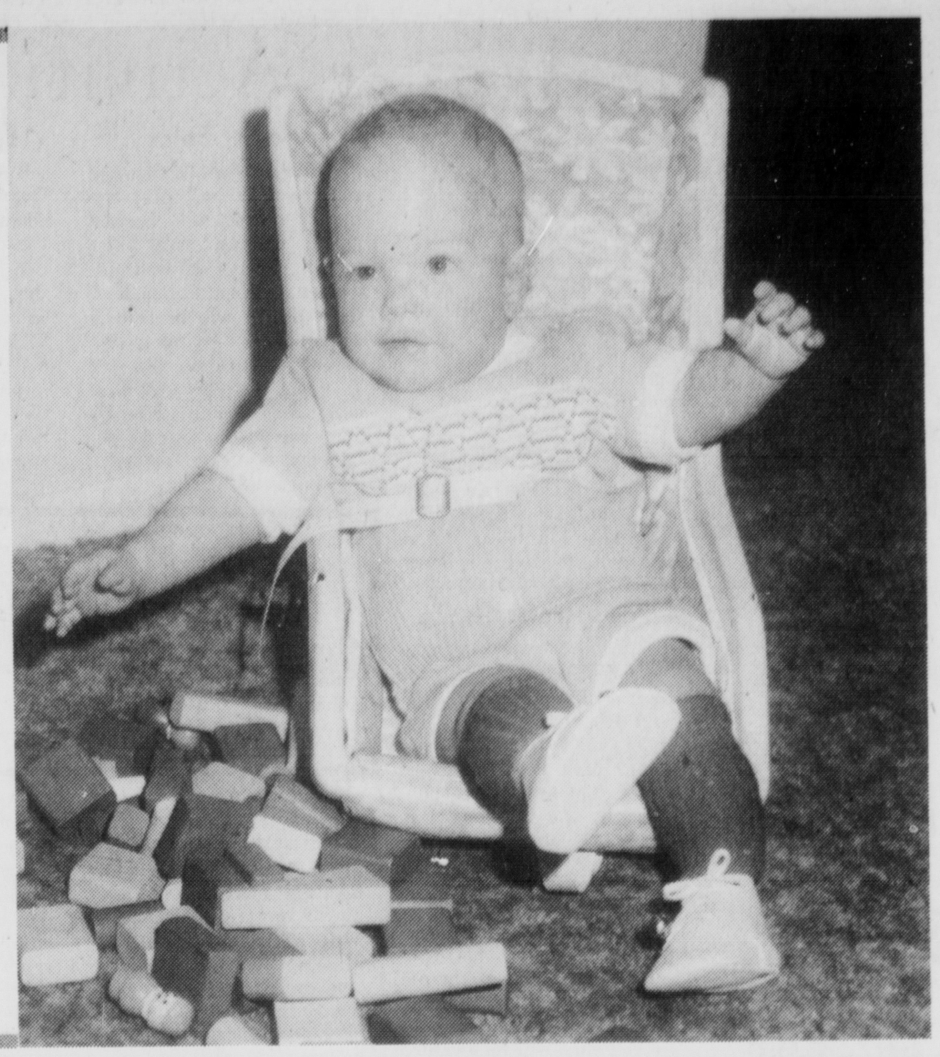

The Saugerties Jayncees want to bring to the attention of the public that some 15 million Americans have one or more birth defects that affect their daily lives. More children are hospitalized for birth defects than for all infectious diseases combined. It is claimed that at least half of all mental retardation is caused by defective prenatal development. (A birth defect is described as a disorder of body structure, function or chemistry which is present at birth).

The Jaynees hope to draw attention to these problems with a special program called "Baby's Lib." It will be held Wednesday, May 14 from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Flamingo Restaurant on Route 9W, Saugerties. Through Baby's Lib, described as a baby's birthright to a healtheir start in life, the Jayncees hope to interest women from all walks of life and economic levels to attend. As one spokesman said:

"If you are pregnant or know of someone who is and is not seeing a doctor, this would be an opportune time to attend and meet with a doctor. Also staffing the program that day will be a nutritionist, who will discuss "eating for two," and a maternity nurse speaking on the topic of "handling the fragile bundle".

Exhibits, pamphlets, films, a maternity fashion show and a "what's new for baby" department is planned also. Light refreshments will be served. The Saugerties Jayncees are also planning a maternity closet of good used items available at nominal fees.

The program is planned in cooperation with the March of Dimes campaign and there will be no admission charge. Detailed information about participating in the show may be obtained from Donna Heidenreich of Saugerties.

DONALD BAKER ia a healthy child. At six months of age he is what every motherwould want in a baby. The Saugerties Jayncees are concerned, however, about the eight per cent born with defects and they want to do something about it. (Freeman photo)

Third Annual fund Raising Program for Ulster Academy

The third annual Ulster Academy International dinner-dance will be held at the school, Route 32, Kingston, on March 15 with cocktails served at 7 p.m. Dinner will start at 8 and dance music will be played throughout the evening by "The Good Timers."

The yearly fund raising event has been announced by Mrs. Janet Modjeska of Saugerties, president of the Academy Parents' Association, which sponsors the project.

The dinner-dance earned its title of 'international' because of the variety of exotic foods prepared by creative guests. This year's menu includes stuffed grape leaves, raw vegetables, lasanga, salads, wines and several gourmet surprised.

The major annual event, which includes parents, faculty and trustees, has become so popular that early reservations are requested. Reservations may be confirmed by contacting Mrs. Yvonne Detweiler of Saugerties. Reservation deadline is Friday. Dinner invitations have been mailed and tickets are $25 per couple.

Committee members also include Mrs. Janet Yallum Mrs. Judy Schultz, trustee, and Mrs. Scrappy Hutton, all of Kingston; Mrs. Pat Hasbrouck, Mrs. Mary Hoodes and Mrs. Winifred Leaycraft, of Woodstock; and Mrs. Bonnie Bragg of Saugerties.

Garden Show, Classes Scheduled

The annual flower show sponsored by Saugerties Society of Little Gardens is scheduled for June 11 and will be titled "A Country Garden," according to reports made by Mrs. William Waldele at a recent meeting. Schedules for the junior division horticulture section were announced in order that all juniors will have plenty of time to start exhibits.

Classes for the junior division will include—ages 5-10, any seed or plant such as a carrot top, avocado, sweet potato, grown in water in a transparent container showing germination.

Ages 11-15, an herb started from seed by the exhibitor.

Each exhibit must be grown by the child. Detailed information may be obtained from Mrs. John Whritenor or Mrs. Robert Freer.

A conservation report given by Mrs. Robert Finger pointed to the growing concern on the part of conservationists across the nation with the electric charges in the atmosphere around the new "super powered" high voltage lines and the effect it will have on plants and animals.

In her horticulture report, Miss Jane Ziegler stated that it was too early to start tomato plants indoors. She suggested March 15 as a better date. Mrs. Gordon Keeley as president opened the meeting with the reading of the Garden Prayer and because it was the first meeting of the year, the constitution and by-laws of the society were read. Mrs. Waldele presented a quiz "flower teasers." Serving with Mrs. Waldele as hostesses were Mrs. Daniel Lamb and Mrs. John Jagodzinski.

UCCC Scholarships Alumni

At a luncheon-meeting with UCCC President Robert Brown, the executive committee of the college's Alumni Association presented a check which will be used for the scholarship program. On hand were, standing (l-r Keith F. Jordan, Alumni president; President Brown; Tim Schiff, co-chairman of activities; seated (l-r) Mary Ann Parker, recording secretary; and Sheila Sickler, corresponding secretary. Earlier in the week, President Jordan outlined the Alumni's activities and progress before a meeting of the board of trustees. In his report he included "many firsts" in the organization's short history and pledged the Alumni to continue its work in the behalf of UCCC. Proceeds from the Harlem Globetrotter basketball game on Monday, March 24 at the col lege will benefit the scholarship program also. (Freeman photo)

You Wouldn't Believe the Questions Asked

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my husband was in an auto accident and suffered an injury to his spine that left him paralyzed from the waist down. He has made a remarkable recovery, both physically and psychologically, and gets around very well in a wheelchair. We are thankful that he is alive and we have both accepted the fact that he will never walk again, but you would not believe some of the questions people ask me. I mean personal questions about my husband's "condition." (What he is—and isn't—capable of doing.) They want to know if our sex life is over. It isn't. But I resent their prying.

How do other people in this situation handle this problem? I feel like telling them it's none of their business, but I'm just not the type to say anything like that.

Is there some other way to politely tell them I would rather not answer such personal questions?

STUCK FOR WORDS

DEAR STUCK: Answer their rude questions with another question: In a very pleasant tone, ask, "Why do you want to Know?" And then change the subject. (This really works!)

DEAR ABBY: My husband got very upset with me yesterday because I served him his breakfast in my nightgown and bathrobe, which I had never done before.

I couldn't help it, Abby. I usually get dressed and all prettied up to serve him his breakfast, but the baby had a bad cold and I was up half the night with her, and I was so tired I could hardly get out of bed in the morning. When I tried to explain this to my husband, he wouldn't listn. He carried on about how his mother always got dressed up in the morning, and he didn't want me to start developing any sloppy habits.

Did I commit such a crime, Abby? I don't intned to make a habit of it.

BONE TIRED

DEAR TIRED: A crime? Certainly not. The next time your baby needs attention during the night, wake your husband and ask him to please take over so you can get your rest. That way you'll be able to dress and get all prettied up to serve him breakfast.

DEAR ABBY: Our son (I'll call him Bob) went off to college last fall, and when he came home for the Christmas holidays, he had long hair and a beard. He looked wild because he never combed or brushed, he just went around with that tangled mess of hair.

My husband couldn't stand the sight of the boy, and told him so. Bob said Jesus had long hair and a beard, but my husband wasn't buying any of that. Finally, my husband offered Bob $500 cash if he would get a short haircut and a shave. Bob agreed without an argument, and everybody was happy.

Last weekend, Bob came home unexpedtedly and it was plain that he had let his hair and beard grow again. Father was furious and demanded that Bob give back the $500. Bob said he upheld his end of the bargain by getting a shave and a haircut, but he didn't agree to keep it that wasy for life.

I am in the middle. Where do you stand?

BOB'S MOM

DEAR MOM: I'm with Bob.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY. Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Would You Like to Save On Fireplace Heat?

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Heloise:

Here is a fireplace hint I know you will like.

In my fireplace, I placed a half-inch mesh screen on top of the grate. This keeps the burnt embers from falling through the wider grate.

The fire also burns better. The logs really burn to ashes, and there are no big chunks of unburnt wood!

Mrs. J.E. Dorko

J.E., you sure were red hot when you thought of this one . . .

I tried it in our fireplace and it's fantabulous, ol' dear.

Your chicken wire-type piece of screen held every teensy piece of my oak until it went to ashes. Saves on logs, too, plus I got more heat. God bless you . . .

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I made my own mailing labels for free—almost.

I used gummed wrapping tape that is approximately one and one-half inches wide. One roll makes scads.

I wrote my name and address the length of the tape. Then I folded the tape like an accordion and creased the folds. One tears off perfectly when I need a label.

I use these when sending off for things such as free booklets, etc.

Harry H.

Dear Heloise:

The inside lid, filter, etc. of my washing machine were sadly water-spotted despite wiping them dry after almost every wash.

I sprayed them with one of the pressure-spray bathroom and tile cleaners and wiped them dry.

They look like new.

Maggie Shroyer

LETTER OF LOVE

Dear Heloise:

I'm glad I found someone to promote my favorite way of life — "making something out of nothing!"

Harriet Boston

And I'm glad you took the time to write those kind words. Make my day brighter . . .

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My mother disliked milk, so in making milk toast she changed the recipe a little . . .

She took a pat of butter and browned it to a golden brown. Watched it carefully, then put in the milk.

Don't boil it, season to taste and pour over your toast.

It makes all the difference in the world. You will love the flavor.

Frances Merritt

We tried it. We liked it. We ate it.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

As you know, shampoo shampooing carpets is a boring job at best, but when the machine breaks, it's worse . . .

I was just starting this trifling chore, when I noticed the liquid cleaner was not flowing out of the shampooer.

So to improvise, I got a plastic sprinker bottle, filled it with the cleaner and "sprinkled" the carpet while shampooing.

'Twas a perfect substitute until the machine was repaired.

Hairdressers Meet With Carey

ALBANY

Some 300 members of the National Hairdressers and Cosmotologist Association (NHCA)—including four delegates from the Kingston area — met with state representatives in Albany Monday to lobby against additional taxes and fees proposed by Gov. Hugh Carey.

The NHCA is particularly opposed to a proposed four per cent tax on beauty services, a three-fold increase in license fees for beauticians and a proposed five per cent tax on unincorporated businesses.

Joseph Donato Jr. of Kingston, an officer in the state association, said the local delegates met Monday with staff members at the offices of Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-Saugerties), Senator Edwyn Mason (R-Hobart) and Assemblyman Jay P. Rolison (R-Poughkeesie), but were unable to talk to the representatives directly.

Nevertheless, Donato said he is confident that the local legislators will join in the fight against the proposed tax and fee increases. Donato asid Mason has already promised to vote against Carey's budget provisions.

News Strike Still On, Employee Furloughs Set

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Daily News, kept off newstands by a wildcat strike now in its third day, will furlough non-essential employes until deliverymen end their walkout, according to a statement by W. H. James, president and publisher.

The statement Monday said the strike by the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union was "in defiance of court orders" and that "In view of the heavy revenue losses, we have concluded that we must begin furloughing employes whose jobs are not essential under the circumstances."

The statement did not specify which employes would be furloughed.

Some 900 drivers walked off the job Sunday night in protest over changes in work schedules. The stoppage effectively halted delivery of more than two million newspapers —the normal print run —although fewer than 5,000 were printed.

No talks were held between the two sides Monday night.

Monday night, striking drivers disobeyed a back-to-work order issued earlier in the day by State Supreme Court Justice Hyman Korn.

Union President Carl Levy said he asked the drivers to return to their jobs at about 6:30 p.m. EST Monday, but added that "I think they understand my sentiments.

"I've asked them to go back to work because I was forced by the judge."

A News spokesman said management representatives would appear before Korn today to ask for a contempt citations against the union for violating three court orders barring the job action —one issued last March, one Sunday night and the Monday injunction.

Trade Specialist Visiting Chamber

KINGSTON

Stanley Schwartz, a trade specialist with the U. S. Department of Commerce, is visiting the Mid-Hudson area this week to meet with local manufacturers about beginning or expanding export trade.

Schwartz, of the department's New York District Office, is discussing with manufacturers in the six-county area the latest data on foreign markets of interest to them and outline various government services available in selling abroad.

Counties included in his itinerary are Ulster, Columbia, Dutchess, Greene, Orange, and Sullivan. Firms may arrange for visits by Schwartz by contacting local chambers of commerce that are associate offices of the Commerce Department.

Commerce Department exporter services, which Schwartz will discuss, include an automated and product-selective foreign sales lead program, assistance in finding overseas sales representatives, foreign market research, and product promotion opportunities, including commerce-sponsored trade shows in key markets abroad.

Memoriam

With love to Marsha Jean Amarello on her birthday March 4th.

"I Remember, Mag, I Remember"
Remember when we used to take walks and go shopping just for the fun of it?
Remember all those clothes we tried on, but none of them ever seemed to fit ?
Remember, Mag, remember all the fun we had?
Remember how you taught me the good from the bad?
Remember when I was frightened, you would alwas come around and my day would be brightened?
Remember, Mag, remember.
I do , I remember.
I remember your silky dark hair,
I remember how you could make everyone care,
I remember how you were always happy, never sad.
I remember the good times we had.
I remember the day you died,
I remember how everyone cried.
We all loved you, Mag, and we still do.
None of us will ever forget you because
We Remember, Mag, we remember.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Key people essential to your plans are likely to let you down today. Bank more upon yourself, less upon others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will not gain as many advantages as you should from a situation where you share an interest because you're overly complacent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It will be easier for you to give your word than to keep it later on. A friend could be lost through a broken promise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have a lot of big ideas. It doesn't appear you're prepared to roll up your sleeves and do something about them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It would be unwise at this time to count on funds or resouces that you hope will be coming in. Be realistic. Work with what's at hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You won't be as careful as you usually are about household matters today. Something that should be attended to will be neglected.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Doublecheck anything important that you put in writing or sign your name to. If you make an error, it will be a big one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're sharing something socially with another, let her share the expense, too. There's no reason you should pick up the entire tab.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have little regard for the opinions of others now. It's likely you'll pull off a few stunts that will raise some eyebrows.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll pass on some information solely because it makes interesting listening, though you know your source isn't reliable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't ask something of another that you refused to do when you had the opportunity. Her answer will be the same as yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is opportunity about you today, but It's the type you can't take for granted. You must act promptly on it.

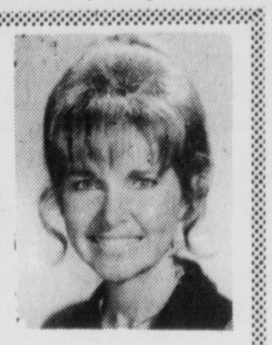

your birthday

March 5, 1975

Lucky breaks will be coming your way this year through unusual sources. One in particular will come from one you know casually who now lives at a distance from you.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS

KISSING: (Q.) Kissing a girl is a problem I've had ever since the time I first tried. Girls tell me I kiss good, but all I get is a funny feeling. — 14 in Texas

(A.) You haven't been kissing exactly the right girl at exactly the right time. When you kiss the right girl at the right time you won't feel funny — you'll feel great.

NIECE: (Q.) I am not a teen-ager, but I am writing about one. She is a girl named Tess that my sister has taken care of since she was a year old. Tess is 18 now and a completely spoiled brat.

She has a good job put pays no board or rent. She gives most of her money to a no-good boy friend who uses four-letter words and acts like he owns her.

Don't you think Tess at least owes her "mom" respect? Don't you think she should be forced to pay board or get out? — Concerned Aunt in Pennsylvania

(A.) It is hard for someone who has never experienced it to understand the love a foster parent can have for a child. Please do not try to lessen that love by interfering with your sister and her foster daughter.

I do think that teens who work and are not paying for college or other educational expenses should be willing to help pay household costs. But this is a matter for your sister — not you — to deal with if she wishes to. So leave her and Tess alone.

Bridge

Percentage Play Has the Edge

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Four hearts is a mighty fine contract. Against any opening lead but a diamond, it is practically a lay down. But as is so frequently the case, West is unkind enough to lead the queen of diamonds.

You decide to duck the first diamond on general principles. Sometimes your opponents shift, but West continues with the jack and you are in dummy with the ace.

You toy with the idea of leading a club. If the man with the ace of clubs started with just two diamonds, you will be able to discard dummy's last diamond on your third club. But you abandon this idea because you have decided that diamonds are going to break 4-3.

So you lead the 10 of trumps from dummy. East follows low.

Should you take the trump finesse now? If it works you are home; if it loses you are going to be one down.

If you refuse the trump finesse and go up with the ace you may drop the singleton king from West. If you don't you can try the spade finesse. If that loses, you will be two down but the combination play is still worth while.

The reason is that you have a 13 per cent chance to drop that singleton king, which is just too much extra percentage to be wasted.

BELLA . . . AN OBLIGATION (UPI)

View Given on Depletion Bill, Tax Cut

Mansfield Hopeful Section Deleted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee is beginning the process of answering a question of interest to every taxpayer: Will the oil depletion allowance be abruptly ended and will the fight over it delay tax rebates?

The committee, after being briefed on a House-passed $21.3 billion tax cut, starts hearings Wednesday with Treasury Secretary William Simon.

The House handed the Senate a politically touchy item when it passed one of the most popular bills of the year with an amendment to end the 22 per cent oil and gas depletion allowance, retroactive to Jan. 1.

A filibuster —nonstop talking to kill the measure — appears likely when the bill reaches the Senate floor no matter what the Finance Committee produces. Fate of the depletion allowance, at least for now, may hinge on which side feels the most pressure from taxpayers anxious for rebates.

The issue is not clearly defined between liberal and conservative. Some liberals feel the tax cut bill should be passed without any extraneous riders because an energy measure already is starting through the legislative process. This legislation would be the logical vehicle for ending the depletion allowance, they feel.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Monday he hoped the Senate would drop depletion from its tax cut bill.

"It would delay getting this relief to lower and middle income taxpayers," Mansfield said.

As for the rest of the bill, the Finance Committee is likely to increase the cuts in the House bill which would grant rebates of $100-$200 to almost every taxpayer and would cut 1975 taxes in the last half of the year.

Several senators including Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said the House cut is too low.

Finance chairman Russell Long, D-La., also wants to add some recession fighting tax breaks, possibly special credits for the purchase of new homes and new cars.

Long refuses to speculate on how long his committee might take. However, if the bill is not through Congress by the Easter recess in late March, it would be almost impossible to get the rebates out in May and June as originally hoped.

Ford Dropping Part of Oil Fee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided to suspend part of his oil import fee while vetoing a bill that could suspend all of it.

He hopes this will speed action by the Democratic controlled Congress on an overall energy program.

Ford imposed a $1 per barrel fee on imported oil Feb. 1 to begin cutting the country's reliance on foreign oil by making it more expensive. He had scheduled an increase of another $1 March 1 and still another $1 April 1.

White House sources said Ford now will postpone the March and April installments for 60 days, leaving the first $1 still in effect.

Congress has voted to suspend the entire fee retroactively to Feb. 1. Ford planned to veto that bill today.

He apparently hoped his partial suspension would avoid a showdown of votes in Congress over whether to override his veto and that the compromise on the oil fee would lead to a compromise with Congress on a long-range energy program.

Sources said the President also has decided to delay his plan to remove existing price controls on domestic oil production April 1.

Press secretary Ron Nessen told newsmen Monday Ford feels a Democratic energy package proposed by Sen. John Pastore of Rhode Island and Rep. James Wright of Texas is "too fluffy and lacking in detail." It would raise gasoline taxes five cents and use the money for energy research.

All indications are Ford believes another Democratic proposal, by Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is more nearly acceptable. It includes a graduated tax on gasoline, starting at 5 cents a gallon and building to 40 cents by 1979. It calls for gradually rising import quotas to cut oil imports by a million barrels a day over two to three years.

The President invited Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee investigating the Central Intelligence Agency, and Sen. John Tower, its ranking Republican, to meet with him to discuss that inquiry.

White House sources said Ford has been apprehensive there may be revelations of CIA roles in political assassinations which could jeopardize its activities and the prestige of the country. They did not say what assassinations they had in mind.

Big Ammo Fund Favored for Cambodia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A majority of the eight-member congressional delegation just back from Indochina favors sending about $120 million worth of ammunition to Cambodia.

All the members recommend sending $75 million in emergency food there.

The delegation, headed by Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., officially presented its conclusions on Cambodia today at a hearing of the House foreign operations subcommittee.

President Ford has asked Congress for $222 million in emergency aid for Cambodia and $300 million for South Vietnam. Some members of Congress have sharply criticized the aid requests. The administration proposed that Congress send the delegation to see for itself if aid is needed.

Reps. Paul McCloskey, RCalif., Millicent Fenwick, RN.J., and Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., described the delegation's conclusions reached in a Monday meeting hours after the group returned from Asia.

Ms. Abzug said she would dissent from the majority view on providing ammunition. Still, she told newsmen, "I see a tremendous obligation to the people. We are forgetting there are people in South Vietnam and Cambodia and they do not progress; they only are destroyed."

Ms. Fenwick said her earlier opposition to emergency military aid to Cambodia had been shaken. She said it probably is required to hold together the government so that there would be a chance of distributing food aid.

"This is a dramatic tragedy of the most urgent nature," she said, and described dodging rockets fired by insurgents into Phnom Penh from across the Mekong River.

Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla,. said Congress must act within two weeks if the aid is to reach the government of President Lon Nol in time to reinforce the defenses around Phnom Penh. Rep. William Chappell Jr., DFla., a longtime hawk, said the trip changed his mind in one respect. He previously voted for aid to Indochina "reluctantly." Now, he said, the reluctance is gone.

A senior official in Phnom Penh told UPI over the weekend the Cambodian government was giving all U.S. airlifted food to its soldiers, not to hungry civilians. Chappell called that report "absolutely untrue."

A State Department official in Washington said Monday the United States will fly 20,000 metric tons of rice from South Vietnam to Cambodia to be distributed to war refugees by U.S. and international voluntary agencies.

Reagan Fearful for Agents in CIA Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan said today he is "very frightened" that congressional investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency will imperil the lives of American secret agents.

Reagan, the former Republican California governor who belongs to the President's Commission on CIA Activities, was asked in an interview with UPI whether congressional inquiries into reports the spy agency violated its charter and snooped on Americans could endanger some of its employes.

"With the history of the Congress for leaking information from investigations, the danger is very real to the point of endangering the lives of men who are serving the United States in that capacity," he said.

"Yes, I'm very frightened of what they can do," he said. "I might also point out this is the same Congress that did away with its own committee that dealt with the security of the U.S.," a reference to the House's abolition of its Internal Security Committee this year.

He said he has not decided whether to seek the GOP presidential nomination next year and described his political plans as "fluid."

Reagan also criticized appointments President Ford has been making and suggested liberals could leave the Republican party if they cannot accept what he said were its conservative principles.

Reagan said Ford no longer could take conservative support for granted and he supported efforts by conservative GOP leaders to put "pressure" on Ford to give his wing of the party greater influence over administration policies.

Although he declined to be specific, Reagan is known to be displeased with the nomination of Carla Hills, a former Los Angeles attorney, as secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

"I do not believe a president should make appointments on the basis of trying to span a political spectrum," Reagan said. "I think a president should make appointments of people who will implement his philosophy."

Reagan said he "would not be displeased" if liberal Republicans left the party.

"That's up to them," he said of liberals such as Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott. "But a party cannot keep changing its philosophy for those who want to keep its name but do not subscribe to its beliefs."

Stage Set for Possible Release

Five freed West German prisoners took refuge in Aden today and sent a volunteer hostage back home, setting the stage for the possible release of a leading politician kidnaped by left-wing guerrillas.

The plane that flew the five freed prisoners to the South Yemen capital left for West Germany this morning with Heinrich Albertz, a Protestant pastor and former mayor of West Berlin.

The kidnapers, believed still holding Christian Democratic political leader Peter Lorenz in West Berlin, have promised to release the captive after Albertz returns to West Germany.

A new, four-man crew took over the plane during a brief stop in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and flew it to Frankfurt. Albertz was expected to go on immediately to Berlin.

A spokesman for Lufthansa said West Germany appealed to South Yemen to let the five guerrillas leave the plane in Aden and grant them political asylum.

It has been six days since Lorenz, head of the West Berlin Christian Democratic party, was abducted from his car by leftist guerrillas.

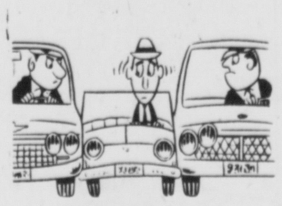

His party, running on a lawand-order ticket, won the most votes in last Sunday's municipal election, but not enough to fom a majority government.

The Bonn government gave in to the kidnapers' demands Monday morning, releasing five jailed leftists and flying them out of the country. Albertz volunteered to go along as a hostage.

The guerrillas landed in Aden Monday night after flying over the Middle East all afternoon in search of a haven. Five airports waved them off.

"The saving of Peter Lorenz' life takes precedence over all reasons of state," Interior Minister Werner Maihofer said Monday in a television interview.
